Self-Help 'Miracle Healer'

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Second of a Series

Doctors have re-discovered two old weapons for the battle against disease—self-help and neighborly kindness.

Sick and injured people are being brought from their beds much sooner than they were. Some who used to be regarded as chronic invalids and stored away like lumber in nursing-home beds, are now being induced to walk, or push themselves about in wheel chairs.

Among these people are half-paralyzed victims of strokes—the clotting of blood vessels in the brain. Many stroke victims do not stand much chance of getting better; but doctors and physiotherapists, working together, have restored encouraging numbers of them to motion.

The doctors and physiotherapists follow a simple rule—persuade the patient to help himself. The patient is the only person who can build up his own muscles, and persuade nerve impulses to find new pathways.

Some of these patients, brought to their feet by the "miracle" of self-help, can go home. Others go to nursing or boarding homes.

Amateurs Assist

In either case, their improved condition saves money. A patient who can feed himself and move about is cheaper to look after than a patient who must be waited on.

Families and neighbors are pressed into service as the doctor's amateur helpers, when a rehabilitated patient goes home.

At this point neighborly kindness becomes an important healing device. By welcoming the patient, making a place for him—and yet giving him a chance to be as self-reliant as possible — family and friends can help his recovery.

Today's complex problems of medicine demand careful scientific planning. Technical progress — the invention of new machines and laboratory methods—have made medicine more impersonal.

Balanced against this trend is an increasing need for the ordinary citizen to be an instrument of healing—to play a greater part in helping himself and his neighbor to get well.

The Royal Commission on Health Services, due to make a one-day stand at the Empress Hotel in Victoria, Feb. 19, is serving a number of useful purposes. One of its purposes is to catch the layman's attention and enrol him as the doctor's helper.

Can Save Fortune

The forces of neighborly kindness and medical planning, working together, can save millions of dollars in hospital and nursing home costs.

Winnipeg General Hospital saved $268,430 in two years by a home-care medical program, financed through federal-provincial health grants.

Visiting teams from the hospital attended patients at home—thereby saving the occupancy of 33 hospital beds and 27 nursing-home beds. Family help and psychological support helped in recovery.

Record-keepers of Britain's National Health Service discovered that single people were much more likely to go to hospital than married people.

In relation to their numbers, twice as many single, widowed or divorced people went to hospitals. The proportion rises with age. About two-thirds of all the hospital beds in the country occupied by those aged over 65 are taken by the single, widowed or divorced.

Crowding Deplored

The loneliness of an impersonal, machine society is acknowledged by doctors to be one of the forces that drive people toward mental and physical breakdown.

The Tyhurst report on mental health services urges that mental patients be removed from prison-like segregated mental hospitals and treated in unlocked psychiatric wings of general hospitals, within easy reach of their home communities.

Dr. James S. Tyhurst, professor and head of the department of psychiatry, UBC medical school, has long campaigned to bring the victims of emotional disorders back into the everyday world.

Manitoba Psychiatric Association, in its brief to the royal commission on health services, deplored the concentration of 4,000 patients in three large understaffed and overcrowded provincial government institutions.

Most British Columbia psychiatrists hold similar views of the institutions in this province.

Volunteers Needed

Dr. Tyhurst recently called mental illness "the largest special medical and hospital program in Canada." Half Canada's hospital beds are occupied by patients with psychiatric disorders. One Canadian in 12 will enter mental hospital.

New drugs and psychiatric methods have made it possible for people to be released more rapidly from mental hospitals than they once were.

Here again the neighbors can help the patient by treating him as a human being, not as an oddity; and by finding him a job if he can handle one.

Canadian Mental Health Association is recruiting a force of volunteers to help in rehabilitation. (Applicants must be screened to eliminate people who are themselves emotionally disturbed.)

These and other voluntary groups provide an example of the way that citizens can help the doctor.

Nyasaland Secession Demanded

ZOMBA, Nyasaland (Reuters)—Negro nationalist leader Hastings Banda Tuesday told British Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys he was still determined that Nyasaland secede from the Rhodesian Federation.

Banda, who heads the Malawi Congress party, had two days of talks with Sandys, who flew back to Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, Tuesday.

All Paris Stops As 300,000 Join in Protest

PARIS (UPI)—The Communists yesterday tied up the country with a general strike that brought 300,000 Frenchmen into the streets of Paris—one of the greatest crowds since the 1944 liberation.

The show-of-strength operation defied a government ban. It was in protest against the Algerian policies of both President de Gaulle and right-wing terrorists.

There was no violence.

MOST EFFECTIVE

The strike was called by the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor. Veteran observers said it was one of the most effective ever seen in this country where political walkouts are frequent.

POWER CUT

Railroads were at a virtual standstill. Flights in and out of the city's two big airports were cancelled for two hours. Electricity and gas were cut for varying lengths of time. There were no mail deliveries. Garbage remained uncollected. Subways and buses stopped for two hours. Schools and shops were closed. Many factories were idle for most of the day. No newspapers appeared.

STRIKE TIMED

The strike was timed to coincide with the funerals of eight persons killed in last Thursday's rioting over the Algerian situation. All but two of the victims were Communists.

No unusual police measures were taken. But the demonstration was controlled by Communist officials. It was completely orderly.

WALL-TO-WALL

The main throng of marchers stretched wall-to-wall across the broad Avenue de la Republique, filling its entire 1½-mile length from the square to the cemetery.

Parisian protesters, as far as the eye can see, jammed Avenue de la Republique yesterday as 300,000 people marched in silent protest against the secret French army organization and police repression of demonstrations against rightwing terrorists. The crowd was taking part in mass funeral for victims of last week's street fighting. No incidents occurred. — (AP Photofax)

Powers Given Drugs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television commentator David Brinkley of NBC said Tuesday night Francis Gary Powers has confirmed his U-2 spy plane had mechanical trouble before it was downed in Russia in May, 1960.

Brinkley also claimed that, "for more than three months before the Moscow trial, Powers was kept in total isolation, given what is called a psychological conditioning, including some drugs, before he was put on the stand to answer a series of questions."

There was no comment from official sources on Brinkley's statement.

Quake Hits Chile Area

WESTON, Mass. (UPI) — Weston observatory reported today it had recorded a "very strong" earthquake, 5,500 miles south of here, probably in Chile.

West May Use Summit Bid To Hook Nikita

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday discussed with the British and French ambassadors Allied diplomatic strategy which some high officials believe will lead to a summit conference with Russia this summer or fall.

Administration sources said the strategy is to hold out the possibility of a top level meeting as "bait" to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in an effort to secure Russian concessions at the Geneva disarmament talks and to keep the Berlin crisis subdued.

The Russian reaction is expected to give some more specific idea of just how much political trouble Khrushchev has at home and how serious he considers the Soviet's widening ideological split with Red China.

'PEACE OFFENSIVE'

Officials acknowledged that Rusk's meeting with ambassadors Herve Alphand of France and Sir David Ormsby-Gore of Britain was concerned with how to handle Khrushchev's new "peace offensive."

THREE AGREE

The three Western powers have agreed to reject Khrushchev's proposal for a summit conference to open the disarmament talks on March 14. But Britain and the United States intend to tell the Russian leader a summit conference might be held later if there is progress at Geneva and no worsening of the cold war on other fronts.

SIDESTEP CHARGED

In Moscow yesterday, officials reaffirmed Russian opposition to disarmament controls and said the U.S. was trying to sidestep Premier Khrushchev's call for a summit meeting.

MAY SHOW UP

There was a widespread belief among Kremlin diplomats that Khrushchev will show up at Geneva on March 14 and thus bring heavy pressure on Kennedy and Macmillan to go there at the same time.

It was thought that the Soviet premier could score a big propaganda victory by attending the conference.

NOT CHANGED

Washington officials emphasized that Khrushchev's summit proposal and the tone of his approach had not altered Kennedy's intention to make a firm decision by the end of this month on whether to resume U.S. nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

High Schools Disappear This Year

By PETER BRUTON

The term "high school" is to be abolished in B.C. this year, Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the legislature yesterday.

Schools will be known as "elementary" and "secondary" schools — one of many new changes to be wrought in the B.C. education system as a result of the Chant royal commission report of a year ago.

NEW PROGRAM

Mr. Peterson said that a new Grade 8 program, providing a stiffer academic curriculum and a separate occupational training course will be started in B.C. schools next fall.

Pupils in Grade 7 will write final departmental examinations this June to help determine which are to continue in regular academic studies and which are to be channelled

Space Flight Off Again

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) —The flight of U.S. astronaut John Glenn, set for 4.30 a.m. PST today, was postponed again early this morning until Thursday by still boiling seas in the central Atlantic landing area.

This was the eighth postponement since the flight was originally scheduled for Dec. 20.

Second Look Demanded For Columbia Treaty

OTTAWA (CP)—The Columbia River development treaty with the United States should be given another serious look to correct some omissions, Senator Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia) said Tuesday.

The treaty signed early last year overlooks the benefits that the U.S. will gain in water for irrigation, the Senator said, and it leaves Canada saddled with $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 costs in relocating 6,000 persons who would be displaced by the High Arrow storage dam.

THREE DAMS

He said Canada would spend about $450,000,000 on three Columbia River storage dams plus transmission lines and the actual U.S. capital cost would be $150,000,000.

If the U.S. attempted to gain the same hydro and flood-control benefits on its side of the international river, it would cost the U.S. in interest alone close to $900,000,000."

ANY WONDER?

"Is it any wonder that we in B.C. who have looked into this matter believe that the treaty should be re-scanned again in the light of these facts that are coming out?"

Let Public Sue Crown—MLA

Oak Bay Liberal lawyer Alan Macfarlane introduced a private member's bill in the legislature yesterday that would give the public full rights to sue the Crown.

The bill would give an individual rights to sue for damage or loss for which a government employee could be blamed.

AUTOMATIC RIGHT

It would also provide that in cases where the cabinet now has to issue a permit before the Crown can be sued, there should be an automatic right to go to court.

Such an act would have allowed the B.C. Power Corporation to sue the government in connection with the B.C. Electric takeover.

Can't Wait Says U.S.

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States cannot wait indefinitely for Canada to ratify the Columbia River treaty, Charles Luce, administrator for Bonneville Power said Tuesday.

Proposal Debated

Macmillan Pledges Compromise Effort

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Macmillan pledged yesterday to do his utmost to find a compromise with Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the proposal for a summit disarmament conference in Geneva.

'SPIRIT' WELCOMED

He told the Commons that governments of the Big Three Western powers were giving careful consideration to Khrushchev's bid and said the West welcomed the "broad spirit" of the proposal.

WAY NEEDED

He added, however, that a way must be found to reconcile Khrushchev's "general ideas" with the more specific Western call for attendance of the nuclear powers' foreign ministers at the conference.

Macmillan also assured the House there would be no U.S. nuclear tests on British-held Christmas Island in the Pacific before the Geneva conference opens on March 14. The United States has raised the possibility of using Christmas Island for new atmospheric tests following the collapse of the East-West nuclear test ban talks.

Young Boy Dies In Dentist Chair

VANCOUVER (CP)—A three-year-old boy died in a dentist's chair Tuesday during a prolonged session under anesthetic.

Christopher N. Tonner was coming out of the anesthetic when police said he apparently suffered a cardiac failure. He was taken to hospital but declared dead on arrival.

Police said the youngster was undergoing nine fillings and two extractions by Dr. W. L. Elliott. The lad was under anesthetic which was administered by Dr. J. A. McNab to permit the lengthy treatment.

The boy's father, William Tonner, returned to the dentist's office to pick up his son and found he was being given emergency treatment. He said young Christopher had undergone a complete medical examination recently and had been found in good health.

2,300 Saved From Flood

GREYBULL, Wyo. (UPI)—Dynamiters working from light planes and helicopters yesterday broke up two huge ice jams on the swollen Big Horn River and apparently spared this northwest Wyoming town from flooding.

L. C. Brinkerhoff, Big Horn county sheriff and civil defence director, ordered the town's 2,300 inhabitants evacuated when the ice first broke loose. One jam was about a mile upstream and the other approximately eight miles away.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

"We instinktivly shrink from eny chaenj in whot is familyar," says a news release on simplified spelling.

You're darned right we shrink. The Canadian Conference of Education sent the odious fragment of prickly prose listed above, as a means of drawing attention to a discussion of simplified spelling at the 1962 Canadian Conference on Education in Montreal, March 4 to 8.

I haven't been invited, but I wouldn't go, anyway. I like our spelling the way it is. Like millions of other English-speaking people, I have a vested interest in keeping the language unchanged.

My investment was time and emotion—a lot of both, spent poring over school books. Our language demands some effort to learn, being so strange, rich and crotchety, stuffed with words plundered from half the languages of the globe.

Gold, Tea and Spices

Everywhere the English went in their empire-building travels, they brought home words along with gold, tea and spices.

All the imported words and thousands of home-grown words are jumbled together in the dictionary, which is a huge warehouse of memories; or to use a sharper figure of speech, it is a garden of living words.

You could run a bulldozer through a garden and make it much more level and tidy, but I doubt that it would be improved.

After you blacktop the flower beds, a new crop of feelings and associations will push their way to the surface—but this takes time.

It may be true that the spelling of our words—and the whole shape of the language the whole shape of the language is illogical and accidental.

The same can be said of many other pleasant and useful things, including the British system of government, which we inherit.

Illogical, but Works

It is illogical, but it works. English-speaking people are not receptive to ready-made languages (Esperanto failed because it had no emotional roots). We are not receptive to ready-made political systems.

The United States tried to start from scratch with a neatly-designed political machine. Now their machine is already worn out, cumbersome and slow-moving.

But our illogical system of government which grew up by accident, is just as light and flexible as ever.

After the United States had thrown off British rule, the new nation tried to rebel against the English language as well. Noah Webster published a radical dictionary which contained such words as "hed" (head) and "masheen" (machine). But his countrymen didn't rally to the cause, and one by one, most of Webster's monstrosities vanished from the book. For the most part, the verbal revolution was a failure.

Doctors Heard by Health Probers

EDMONTON (CP)—A survey carried out by the Alberta medical profession found that only two per cent of all households in the province refrained from calling a doctor because they felt they could not afford to.

The survey, described to the royal commission on health services Tuesday, also showed that among households where there was a long-term illness or a person with a "physical handicap requiring treatment," only 0.7 per cent did not arrange for treatment by reason of feeling unable to pay.

RESULTS IN BRIEF

Results of the survey were outlined in a brief presented jointly by the Alberta College of Physicians and Surgeons, the Alberta division of the Canadian Medical Association, and the University of Alberta faculty of medicine.

They said the survey, conducted last June and July, confirmed their belief that "very few of the citizens of the province did not receive medical attention because they could not afford it."

LOW PRIORITY

The profession assigned relatively low priority to the need for a universal medical care plan. It said recruitment of personnel, development of facilities for chronic and convalescent patients, and expanded mental health services should get leading priority.

Nevertheless, the profession was in favor of a comprehensive—though voluntary—prepaid medical insurance scheme.

It recommended an expanded version of the doctor-sponsored plan now operated by Medical Services Alberta Incorporated, which insures more than 500,000 people in this province and embraces 92 per cent of the private practising physicians.

Peterson Outlines Changes

into a new occupational program.

The new Grade 8 program will include a compulsory course in French and greater emphasis on English, mathematics, social studies and science.

Mr. Peterson also said he hopes to bring in legislation this session to provide increased assistance to school districts for construction of vocational units in secondary schools.

INCREASED AID

This would be in line with the federal government's offer to provide increased assistance to school districts for construction of vocational units in secondary schools.

The minister, speaking in the budget debate, said some changes, including the return of Grade 7 to the elementary school level and lengthening of the school day and school year, were put into effect last year following the 1960 completion of the commission's study.

OVER FIVE YEARS

Mr. Peterson said others will be implemented progressively so that over a period of at least five school years from Sept. 1 this year a new secondary school program, based on the commission recommendations, will have been instituted.

TO FOLLOW THROUGH

The department would bring in changes at the Grade 9 level next year, at the Grade 10 level the following year and so on so that a pupil entering Grade 8 this fall will follow the new program throughout his secondary education.

FURTHER REDUCTION

Among other changes announced by the minister today were these:

1. A further reduction next fall in the number of pupils per teacher for grant purposes—to 38 from 39—following a reduction last year to 39 from 40. Coupled with this is a change that requires 69 pupils instead of 71 before a third teacher may be added to a two-room school.

THREE YEARS NEEDED

2. Effective immediately, no permanent certification of teachers will be granted until three years of training beyond Grade 12 have been completed. Teacher candidates will be able to teach after two years of training but will not receive permanent certificate until they have completed a third year.

REPORT CARDS

Mr. Peterson said other recommendations of the royal commission have been or are being implemented, including those relating to report cards, increasing the number of district superintendents, discontinuance of swing shifts, development of playing fields and summer institutes for principals. But he detailed only the major ones.

LIBRARY SURVEY

He said two outstanding persons in education in B.C. will be hired by the department as provincial curriculum consultants. They will meet with teachers and public groups and study necessary curriculum research and engage in a program of curriculum improvement.

In addition, the department will undertake this year, in co-operation with the B.C. Library Association, a thorough survey of school libraries.

Even Faster Than Flying?

VANCOUVER (CP)—"I'd like to see the time," said Highways Minister Gaglardi Tuesday, "when I can sit in a plane, somebody pulls a lever, and I'm at my destination immediately. I'll never be satisfied until we can go from here to there without wasting any time.

"We left Friday night and were back Friday morning," he said, back from Hong Kong. "But we still had to sit for eight hours in that plane doing nothing."

Twin Centenary Set For Pioneer Family

A pioneer Victoria family will have a two-fold purpose in celebrating the city's centennial year.

To the family of Alexis Casanave the year is also the 100th birthday of the landing of their father in Victoria.

Mr. Casanave arrived here in 1862 from France after taking part in the Cariboo Gold Rush.

He started a dairy farm on property adjoining 2121 Cadboro Bay Road. The family home still stands and is occupied by Mr. Casanave's youngest son, Victor. The farm's land is taken up by Oak Bay High School.

In 1884 Mr. Casanave married Elizabeth Colgdarripe who was born near Mr. Casanave's home in France.

Of the seven children born to the pioneer couple five remain to celebrate the 100th birthday of their father's landing here. They are John Casanave, Vancouver; Mrs. John McLellan, Victoria; James Casanave, Courtenay; Eugenie Reddy, Ottawa, and Victor Casanave, Victoria.

Tourist Parking Splits Committee

An attempt to force sightseeing vehicles to park on private land after 1963 was stalled in city traffic committee yesterday.

"You are possibly wiping out an industry tourists and local people have enjoyed since Victoria was Victoria," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow protested when the contentious recommendation was read to committee.

But Ald. Michael Griffin, whose special transportation and traffic committee recommended the move, took the other side of the argument.

"Let's put this monkey on their backs," he said.

Mayor R. B. Wilson supported Ald. Edgelow. "This is quite a drastic step to take," he said.

When city engineer James Garnett told the committee established bus line companies objected to tourist vehicles using city streets as terminals, Mayor Wilson commented:

"Who are we trying to entertain, the tourists or the coach lines? If we keep them off the streets we will not have them to entertain our tourists."

Pussyfooting Tactics Get Mayor's Boot

Mayor R. B. Wilson yesterday stomped on pussyfooting tactics by aldermen over demolition of concession buildings at Thetis Lake Park and Hamsterley Park.

Members of city parks committee discussed whether or not the city should keep concession buildings at the two parks, but Mayor Wilson interjected, pointed out city council had already decided to demolish the buildings and ended the discussion.

Hiatal Hernia Problem Much More Common Than People Suppose

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Does bleeding of the mouth come from hiatal hernia? I have such a hernia of the stomach, and would like to know if proper diet and loss of weight would help. Is it possible for hiatal hernia to shrink, or would medication help?—A.B.

Hiatal (or hiatus) hernia is not in the exact sense of the usual abdominal hernia, or rupture. Rather, it is a hernia, or fault, which is entirely internal, at the point at which the gullet passes through the diaphragm. It's a very great deal more common than is popularly supposed, so it behooves people to have a mild acquaintanceship with the term.

As to "bleeding of the mouth," do I understand correctly? Bleeding "of" the mouth, gums, nose, or related areas, is one thing. It has nothing to do with hiatal hernia. But bleeding "from" the mouth, that is, vomited blood, can occur if an ulcer has formed at the hiatal hernia. This is not usual, but it can happen.

SLIDING HERNIAS

There are also cases called sliding hernias, in this respect, because the intestinal corridor may slip upward or downward at the faulty point, causing distress intermittently.

If (as can be done) it is ascertained that bleeding is from this point, an "ulcer diet" is required. Otherwise such a diet cannot be expected to reduce or "shrink," or "cure" the condition. It may relieve discomfort, which is well worth while, however.

OVERWEIGHT WOMEN

In my experience many patients with hiatal hernia are overweight women of middle age (although other ages are not exempt). Reduction of weight usually helps them a great deal.

Medication can occasionally be used to counteract acidity and inhibit spasm, and thus be helpful in treating the condition. In some cases surgery is the correct and only solution.

Dear Dr. Molner: My legs and arms are covered with black-and-blue and yellowish bruise marks. I seem to bruise easily, just by walking into a chair, for example. Does this indicate any abnormality? I am 41.—K.C.

Yes, such easy bruising may be significant. Sometimes a dietary deficiency (lack of Vitamin C, from fruit juices, or calcium, from milk) is the cause. Improving the diet is the cure, of course.

In other cases some blood abnormality may be present.

Freedomite Gets Two Years to Pay

I Hate Sea, Old Salt Confesses

Not Time For Talks

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Macmillan said in the House of Commons yesterday that the moment had not arrived to consider calling a conference of Commonwealth prime ministers to consider Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

Door Kept Open

LONDON (Reuters) — An amendment to a controversial Commonwealth immigration control bill which would have exempted Commonwealth citizens who "served or were wounded or maimed" in the Second World War was defeated in the House of Commons Tuesday.

The clause was defeated 223 to 183 but David Renton, home office minister of state, told MPs:

"We are sympathetic to its broad purpose and no member of the Commonwealth forces, past, present or future, will have any difficulty in gaining admittance as a visitor."

Renton added that current members of the Commonwealth forces are exempted from the bill.

'Afraid' After 46 Years

SAN FRANCISCO — Geoffrey M. Fletcher, craggy-faced captain of the British luxury liner Andes, has a slight confession to make about his 46 years at sea.

"I hate it," he told astonished reporters after the 27,000-ton vessel docked on its first visit to San Francisco. "I'm afraid of it. You should see me at sea, especially in rough weather. I know what the sea can do."

Captain Fletcher, a bluff English seadog with an engaging smile, disclosed that this is his last voyage before retirement.

"Actually, the sea's not so bad when the sun is shining. But when the weather turns bad I don't like it a bit. Oh, I don't go around trembling, of course—that wouldn't do, you know—but I don't like it."

Late last night, after receiving a message from London, Capt. Fletcher retracted his statement and maintained, "I really was laughing and joking."

Ceylon Governor Cleared of Plot

COLOMBO (Reuters) — The government disclosed Tuesday that an abortive coup last month was engineered by top military and police officers who planned to install a new regime in Ceylon headed by Governor-General Sir Oliver Goonetilleke.

QUESTIONS INVITED

But in details of the plot given to the House of Representatives Goonetilleke was virtually absolved of any knowing implication with the rebel leaders.

However, Finance Minister Bandaranaike told the legislature that Goonetilleke has volunteered to submit himself to questioning to clear his name.

Bandaranaike, a nephew of Prime Minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike, called in his statement for severe punishment for the rebel leaders and complete and radical reforms in the armed forces, police and the public services.

The finance minister said the governor-general was named in a confession by Col. F. C. de Saram, one of the rebels.

New York Trial

Canadians Jailed On Dope Charges

NEW YORK (CP)—Eleven members of a multi-million-dollar international narcotics smuggling ring were sentenced Tuesday to prison terms ranging from 5 to 25 years following trial that began Oct. 27.

The 11—two of them from Toronto—were among 20 persons indicted nearly a year ago on charges of conspiring to smuggle $150,000,000 worth of narcotics into the United States from Italy and Canada.

HELD BY RCMP

Among those sentenced in U.S. federal court by Judge William Herlands were Vito Agueci, 41, and Rocco Scopellitti, 26, whose homes are in Toronto.

Scopellitti was given a 10-year term and Agueci was sentenced to 15 years. They were arrested in Toronto by RCMP narcotics agents after the case was cracked open in October, 1960, when a shipment of heroin was intercepted.

Two, along with Albert Agueci, 39, Vito's brother, were extradicted from Canada so that they could stand trial in New York. Albert Agueci skipped $20,000 bail following his indictment and later was found slain near Rochester, N.Y.

Rocket Tests Complete

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Atlas E series, the most powerful combat-ready U.S. military rocket, completed its test flight program Tuesday with a successful 7,000-mile strike down the Atlantic range.

The 82-foot projectile, an advanced version of the Atlas ticketed to boost John Glenn into orbit today, streaked into a clear sky and sped at more than 15,000 miles an hour to an Atlantic Ocean bullseye off the west coast of South Africa.

The air force said the overall record of the rocket is 11 successes, six partial successes and two failures.

Las Vegas Viewed As Awful Vision

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Christian faith has been worn thin by secular influences and the United States is moving toward an age of self-indulgence and artificiality exemplified by the "flowering cancer" of Las Vegas, Nev., says a leading churchman.

Dr. Robert W. Spike of New York, general secretary of the board of home missions of the United Church of Christ, told a symposium of the annual meeting of the National Council of Churches' division of education:

"There are times when I see the city of Las Vegas as a preview of the future of civilization—and if that isn't horrifying, I don't know what is.

"Las Vegas could be the vision of the horrible future of a nation that owes its existence to self-indulgence . . . which can only survive by spending more and more to pamper itself."

Dr. Spike made it clear his distaste wasn't based on an abhorrence to gambling, legal in Las Vegas, "or a puritanical objection to people having a good time." His revulsion, he said, results from the desperation of people intent upon triviality.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Advt.

Tending the Sick

COINCIDENT with the appearance of The Colonist in 1858 the Sisters of St. Ann arrived in Victoria. They came to teach but almost immediately were called on to attend the sick. This dual role they have continued until now, more than a hundred years later, and St. Joseph's Hospital reflects the continuing mission of mercy to which in those early days the Sisters turned their hands.

No considerations of race, creed or color have ever marked the hospital administration. Today in fact more than eighty per cent of the patients are of non-Catholic faith as are sixty per cent of the staff. Thus has catholicity in its true essence been the foundation stone of the Sisters' hospital service.

St. Joseph's complements Royal Jubilee, and together these two institutions serve this area with distinction in the manifold phases of hospital work so necessary to the weal of the community. It is in keeping with the need for expansion in order to maintain and improve its hospital services, consistent with the human growth of the capital city area and the advances of medical and hospital sciences, that St. Joseph's has launched its current building fund campaign.

The project embraces a new wing to provide more beds, and the renovation and extension of existing facilities so that St. Joseph's can meet the future acute needs of Victoria with confidence and ability to serve. As with Royal Jubilee such a program is vital to the personal interests of the community.

It is noteworthy, almost unique indeed, that this is the first time in all its long history that St. Joseph's has appealed to the general public at large for funds. Although serving all comers with devotion the hospital has hitherto been able to depend on private donors and the resources of the order to which the Sisters belong. That is no longer possible in view of the ever widening nature of the services rendered to the community and the general nature of the hospital as an integral part of community life.

The building and renovation program will cost approximately $2,700,000 but only about one-eighth of this sum, some $350,000, will be sought from community subscriptions and pledges. The balance will be made up from government and municipal grants and a contribution from the Sisters of St. Ann, the latter itself exceeding the amount asked of public donors.

This is an appeal certain to arouse a sympathetic and interested response from a public which realizes the value and virtues of St. Joseph's, the birthplace of literally thousands of present-day Victorians of all creeds and denominations and a haven to which the community looks for humanitarian service in its time of sickness and distress. The maintenance of adequate and up-to-date hospital service is imperative to the health and welfare of the community.

Strange Opposition

THE ADAMANT opposition of Mayor Wilson and city council to "informal" intermunicipal study of amalgamation is strange and puzzling. Are the proponents of a study, like boys who won't play ball if they can't set their own rules, now going to discard the idea in disgruntlement?

The word "informal" came into the discussions only to distinguish between a co-operative study at the intermunicipal level and a government-directed study under terms of a division of the Municipal Act dealing with establishment of metropolitan government.

The latter was the kind sought by Mayor Wilson and Reeve Murphy of Saanich, both of whom appeared oblivious to the obvious intent of this part of the act. One section could be interpreted as possibly permitting a study of amalgamation, but the division leads only to acceptance or rejection of a metropolitan board, an extra, superimposed level of local government that would not bring an end to having four councils, four municipal staffs and four of almost everything in this one community of Greater Victoria.

At the discretion of the municipal affairs minister, too, the use of this division of the act could lead to compulsion. Oak Bay and Esquimalt could be forced to take part in the study; subsequently, if only one municipality voted against metropolitan government, it could be obliged to submit to the wishes of the others.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt understandably objected to a study of this kind, and Saanich council rejected it by a majority vote. But Oak Bay and Esquimalt have offered to take part in an "informal"—for contradistinction—study of amalgamation. They have gone further and offered to put the question of unification to their ratepayers at the conclusion of an examination of the facts.

A study of the pros and cons of amalgamation at the intermunicipal level surely can be as serious and formal as the participants care to make it, and there is no indication that Oak Bay and Esquimalt want to take the matter lightly.

Why not, therefore, go ahead? In amicable, co-operative gathering of the facts for presentation to the people of the community, what can Victoria City lose?

Originality

THE CITY COUNCIL is planning a welcome break from boring custom in deciding to give the Princess Royal an original local painting instead of the usual illuminated address of welcome. Royal persons must have enough of these to paper a palace.

The visit of Princess Mary will be one of the highlights of the civic centennial year, even if her presence here will be coincidental. Her main purpose in coming to Victoria this summer is to present new colors to the regiment which bears her name, the Canadian Scottish. This is an event which will be a prime public spectacle and thus a fine centennial attraction.

For her part it will be equally attractive to take away with her the painting the council has in mind, a canvas of a native bird by Fenwick Landsdowne, the brilliant Victoria artist whose work in this field has won universal acclaim. This is something she can and probably will hang in her home and admire and appreciate for years to come.

How different must be private royal reaction to the reams of illuminated script which normally attend royal visits, and which inevitably gather dust as they lie piled in pigeonholes, there being no other place for them.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax . . ."

BY TOM TAYLOR

THEY shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree. That is, in or around his home.

So saith the prophet Micah, and how true. There is nothing so cosy, so warm and so protecting as one's home. Every human being knows the gladness of heart wrapped up in this little four-letter word.

Be it ever so humble, runs the song, and the song itself has become immortal.

When more than a century ago Maria Tree, clothed in a "complete white morning dress of muslin, frilled," stood before a Covent Garden audience and as the heroine of John Payne's opera, "The Maid of Milan," sang "Home Sweet Home," she gave voice to what has become one of the most famous songs in English-speaking lands.

And because she bespoke the human heart.

* * *

The quality of mercy, said Shakespeare, is not strained. Neither is the quality of a home. Affluent or poor, it makes no difference if it is the core of family life. And if it is there that a person feels at ease, surrounded by familiar things.

A convict in Minnesota has just gone back to his home, even if few might think that a jail could so be termed. But iron bars can loom in other guise than that of a prison.

This elderly man, now 80 years of age, was unhappy in the freedom that came to him after 50 years. Half a century of a changed world found him a misfit. It was all new and strange, unfamiliar, and he could not adapt himself to it.

So he asked to be taken "home," to the prison which had come to be the cosy, protective environment that had brought him peace.

No greater tribute to the feeling of home, perhaps, was ever paid, paradoxical though it might seem.

* * *

For it is the familiar, the well-loved, the tested and proved locale that home represents.

The home raises the ego, too. One need not emulate the king-of-the-castle and act superior, but it's a fact that if one feels "at home" one feels assured, at ease, master of one's surroundings and able to give a good account of oneself.

If you wonder, ever, why sporting clubs play better in their own domain than on foreign fields or ice, herein lies the secret. They are at home.

And confident that they are among friends and in familiar territory they play without inhibition and so reproduce their best form.

* * *

The cosiness of being at home is not confined to four walls, you see. The soldier who, dying, sang of his hills of home was lamenting the wider home he would not see again. No hills but his own could ever be so grand, so close to his heart.

So it is with all far-away places.

The traveller who after a holiday steps back on his native soil, or into his resident community, and says "It's good to be home," is voicing the true sentiment of his being. He is back again among his own.

Home is nostalgic, and nostalgia is a powerful force in the human breast. It is the root source of the song sung so long ago by a lady in white, a color whose purity reflects the true essence of home.

They shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree.

What a blessed thing, really, and what a blessed word is home. It is the anchor of peace and of all that makes life worthwhile.

Dawn Over the Mediterranean

Far-Reaching Impact

The Value of Harbors

This article is an excerpt from an address by Mr. Howard A. Mann, chairman of the National Harbors Board, to the Rotary Club of Victoria and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

WHAT precisely is the impact of a port on the community?

There are the wages of the employees of the port. The purchases made locally by the harbor administration generate income locally and its construction projects provide employment.

The ships that call at the harbor are loaded and unloaded by local labor whose wages are spent to a preponderant extent in the community. These same ships require bunkering and our harbors have the facilities to look after their needs. As a consequence of these needs, fuel installations can be found at each of the major ports.

Ships that call must be provisioned and supplied. This is largely done by the ship chandler.

Here in Victoria, the Canadian Ports and Shipping Directory for 1961 lists these firms in that category: Edward Lipsett Ltd., Gordon and Belyea Ltd., McLennan, McFeely and Prior Ltd., Ship Chandlers Ltd. All these services employ people whose income is dependent on the port and who spend this income in the port city.

* * *

But the list is by no means exhausted. Ship repair facilities, pilot services, forwarding agents, customs brokers, grain-handling facilities, shipping agents, all derive their livelihood from the harbor.

Some time ago I had occasion to look at a study made in the United States.

This study, first published in 1954 and kept up to date since, attempts to measure the impact of Virginia ports on the economy of the State of Virginia. The figures are most enlightening. Water-borne commerce in the Hampton Roads area contributed this wealth to the State of Virginia in 1959: 34,298 jobs paying over $161,000,000 in wages; over $18,000,000 in taxes and over $280,000,000 in purchases of material and merchandise. Such is the impact of a port on the economy.

But since most things in our economic life interact, the effects of a harbor go beyond the city in which it is located. They spread far inland. The benefits of a busy port flow to the railways and the trucks which handle import and export cargoes, they flow to those who supply them and thereby to their thousands of employees.

These benefits are felt by the industries which depend on water-borne commerce such as the logging industry of this province, the oil refineries, sugar refineries, paper mills, cement plants, iron and steel works and the chemical plants. They are felt by the Prairie farmer whose grain flows in a steady stream through our eastern and western ports.

* * *

In the face of all this, there can be very little doubt of the important role which a port plays in the economic life of a city and which our Canadian harbors occupy in our country's economy.

In view of this important impact of ports on our economic life, we must do everything in our power to keep our facilities up to date and efficient. As I said at the outset of my remarks, this takes money. Let me give you an indication of the kind of money that is involved.

Let me restrict this to the ports under the administration of the National Harbors Board. The book value of the assets at the eight national harbors and the grain facilities at Port Colborne and Prescott is in excess of $350,000,000. This, of course, is the book value of assets, many of which were built before the dollar went into orbit after the last war. The replacement value of these assets at today's costs is something which staggers the imagination.

I took off the figures of expenditures on capital account made by the National Harbors Board over the five years from 1956 to 1960 to show just how much had been invested in our ports in the more recent past. The total comes to over $101,000,000.

Assuming a population of 18,000,000 people, this means an expenditure of over $5.50 for every man, woman and child in Canada on the facilities provided in the last five years at 10 locations in Canada. Add to this the expenditures made at other Canadian ports and the total becomes truly monumental.

And these expenditures must go on in order to keep our ports modern. The 1962 capital budget of the National Harbors Board was tabled in the House of Commons a few days ago. In 1962 we expect to spend almost $30,000,000 on essential facilities at our ports.

* * *

These investments in our harbors must be utilized to the fullest extent possible so that we as Canadians can get a return on our money. Although the situation has improved in recent years, too much of our traffic is still moving via United States ports. We must realize, as do our friends across the border, that every ton of cargo which fails to be routed through a Canadian port fails to make its contribution to the prosperity of this country. As I had occasion to say in Vancouver just two days ago: This is not economic nationalism; this is economic realism.

As for us, we certainly realize that we must spare no efforts to attract cargo to Canadian ports. The National Harbors Board is engaged in an active traffic development program to this end.

Our representatives call on customers, our promotional literature goes all over the world, our emissaries call on actual and potential port users abroad. All these efforts are vital because port business like any other business is highly competitive. We appreciate this competition. We value it and we can more than hold our own in it. For Canada's harbors are the equal of any in the world.

A Few Germs

Taste Testing

(From the Toronto Daily Star)

BRITISH Transport Minister Ernest Marples says that French cooking is unhygenic. He says that French chefs taste what they are cooking with their fingers.

Naturally. That is why French cooking is good. That is why English cooking is bad.

Mr. Marples should think the matter through. The only way a cook can make sure that his product is tasty is by tasting it—preferably at each stage of its development. If, in order to remain hygienic, he tastes it with a spoon, he will need a new, uncontaminated spoon for each taste. The necessary mountain of cutlery would drive him (mountainous himself with all that dedicated tasting) right out of the kitchen. Not to mention what the wash-up boy would have to say.

British cooks solve the dilemma by not tasting at all. This, in view of the concoctions of which they are guilty, is probably just as well for them; and perhaps it has contributed to making the British the hardy race they are. To eat what passes for cooking in those islands one has to be hardy.

The French chef looks at it differently. 'What do a few germs matter?" he asks, licking a finger to see if a touch more paprika would improve that sauce. There are germs—a lick for the pepper—and germs—a lick for the garlic—and a man must eat his litre of germs before he dies—two licks for the sour cream.

He pours his perfect sauce over his perfect partridge—already tasted—and heaven is on the table.

Did Mr. Marples ever find heaven in a British boiled pudding?

"I suppose I'm dating myself, but I distinctly remember when the 'middle of the road' was a safe, comfortable, non-controversial position . . . now it's downright dangerous . . . !"

Russia's Policy

Risky Waiting

By ISAAC DEUTSCHER

(Second of three articles.)

IS the quarrel (between Mao and Khrushchev) then mainly over the "wrong" done to Stalin posthumously? But Mao had been, throughout his career, in tacit conflict with Stalin — he seized power against Stalin's advice.

After the 20th Congress he sought, with his "Let a hundred flowers blossom," to outdo Khrushchev in de-Stalinization. He has since discovered, it is said, that what may be meat for industrialized and relatively prosperous Russia is poison for backward China; and he has tightened up his severely paternalistic system of government.

But surely this system and the more "liberal" regime in Russia could well co-exist in the Soviet block, for, after all, Mao and Khrushchev stand for the "monolithic" party-state.

Thus while all the factors enumerated previously undoubtedly make for dissension, they do not account for an open and momentous schism.

Khrushchev's behavior, however, becomes intelligible if it is assumed that he is contemplating a big new move, aiming at genuine accommodation with the West and, in the first instance, at a German settlement. Such a move, if it is bold and sweeping enough to achieve its objective, is bound to be highly controversial from the Communist viewpoint and to produce a split anyhow. In that case Khrushchev is merely anticipating the inevitable and he is the initiator of the split and the first to come out with an anathema on his present and future opponents. He is provoking the schism in order to gain complete freedom of manoeuvre in foreign policy.

* * *

Here a quick retrospective glance at a certain crucial moment in Soviet policy seems necessary.

Ever since Stalin's death the German issue has been at the centre of the factional struggles in Moscow. Already in March-April 1953 the presidium, as it surveyed the legacy of the Stalin era, agreed that East Germany was a millstone on Russia's neck, and that the sooner it was thrown off the better. The question was how to throw it off without breaking one's back in the process.

All members of the presidium agreed nominally on the desirability of a military withdrawal from Germany; but they disagreed on policies. Malenkov and Beria on the one hand and Molotov on the other represented diametrically opposed conceptions.

Malenkov and Beria advocated immediate negotiations with the West, and proposed measures designed to dismantle Ulbricht's regime on the quiet and to prepare the military withdrawal. They hoped to induce the West to a simultaneous withdrawal of all occupation armies to the Oder and the Rhine; but, failing this, they advocated a unilateral Russia withdrawal which, they argued, would force a Western withdrawal anyhow.

They took it for granted that this would mean the end of Communist rule in East Germany, but thought this a worthwhile price to be paid for long term security.

They sought to impress the presidium with the argument that the internal weakness of the post-Stalinist regime (which no one knew better than Beria) demanded such an initiative in foreign policy.

Farming was in decline; even industry was struggling with difficulties; consumer goods were in terribly short supply; popular morale was bad, and Stalin's successors lacked authority. Only huge and early investments in farming and consumer industries could retrieve the situation; and only a drastic reduction in armaments could provide the resources necessary for that.

Molotov and Kaganovich had no objection to exploring with the Western powers the chances of an all-round withdrawal from Germany, but only on conditions that would guarantee the survival of a Communist regime in East Germany. They ruled out any unilateral Russian withdrawal.

The Malenkov-Beria proposals, so Molotov argued, threatened to create a vacuum into which NATO would move at once. And they would bring about the collapse of Communist government not only in East Germany but over all or most of Eastern Europe, with incalculable repercussions inside the Soviet Union.

Sceptical of the possibility of any agreed withdrawal, Molotov concluded that nothing was left for the Soviet government but to play for time, throw a maximum of resources into the arms race and keep up the nation's shaky morale by a discipline more rational than the Stalinist one, but not much less severe.

At this stage Khrushchev's views on the German issue were undecided. Indirectly, however, he supported Molotov and Beria in domestic affairs. He was against the pro-consumer switch in industry and huge investments in intensive farming. With less investment, by means of extensive farming on the virgin lands, he hoped to solve the food problem and improve morale. This was to enable the government to go on with the arms race and to put off any decision over Germany.

By the beginning of June, 1953, the presidium had adopted, by only a slight majority, Beria's and Malenkov's proposals. The vote was taken under the impression of Churchill's famous House of Commons speech of May 11, in which the British prime minister described sympathetically the new mood in Russia and hopefully urged negotiations.

The majority of the presidium came to believe that the Beria-Malenkov plan was indeed practicable; and the energetic steps were immediately taken in Berlin to start dismantling the Ulbricht regime.

* * *

The Berlin rising of June 16-17 saved Ulbricht. The White House and even the British foreign office dissociated themselves from the British prime minister's optimism about the chances of an accommodation with Russia and from his conciliatory approach. A new majority in the presidium concluding that Molotov's warnings about the "mortal danger" to the Soviet Union inherent in the Malenkov-Beria plan had been justified, Beria paid with his head.

Molotov remained in control of foreign policy for a few years. When Khrushchev took over to steer an "intermediate course," he did not basically change the Molotov line but tried to apply it with greater suppleness. The fact that the presidium has ever voted for a unilateral withdrawal from Germany has been forgotten; and the idea itself appears to be buried forever.

Yet the foreign policy alternatives which emerged from the 1953 debate were not accidental; and they still confront Khrushchev. His "intermediate course," like the Molotov line it was supposed to replace, has come to a dead end. He is as far as ever from any agreement with the West over any issue. The German millstone, made even heavier by the Berlin wall, is still on his neck.

* * *

No doubt the waiting game has brought the Soviet bloc quite a few dividends: successes in the nuclear arms race, revolts against the West in Asia and Africa, and the growth of Russian industrial power and prestige.

But these benefits may be nullified by the dangerous situation in East Germany. Berlin may be the Danzig of a third world war. And with West Germany as the leading industrial and military power on the continent, it is becoming far too risky for Moscow—and for anyone else—to go on with the waiting game. The German problem is back at the centre of Soviet preoccupations.

Bargains Elusive

By GREGORY CLARK

IN recent discussions of discount houses and the emergence of disturbing new factors in the world of retail trade, the phrase "distress merchandise" is used. The dictionary gives the definition of distress merchandise as "goods sold quickly, usually at less than the prevailing price, in order to obtain cash".

According to merchants of my acquaintance, there is a wider meaning. In all but a very few of the manufacturing fields, there are not infrequent boo-boos, in which the management misjudges the fashions, the demand, or the fickle public mood.

Warehouses become backed up with these goods. They are laboriously pushed upon the smaller out-of-the-way shops, or distributed to the smaller communities at a reduced price, though seldom at a loss. When the warehouses and small shops become overloaded with these mistakes on the part of production, steps have to be taken to unload.

These goods become "distress merchandise" along with the goods referred to by the distionary. But it is safer to avoid the dictionary category even more than the boo-boos. For that is goods urgently produced as bargain goods in order to raise hurried cash.

True bargains, actually, are a little hard to come by.

Letters to the Editor

Space Needed

Last month some members of the Canadian Legion discovered that space in the Victoria Veterans' Hospital was crowded to the point where a blind veteran who served in the Yukon Field Force in the gold rush of 1898 and was wounded in France during the First World War could not, at the age of 88, be given a bed in the hospital.

We are informed that the ward, built to accommodate the veteran who can no longer take care of himself, is crowded to capacity and that two other wards have also been filled by old veterans who are reaching the end of the road.

In view of this situation why cannot the vacant beds in the Mountain View Home be given to some of the veterans who are vainly waiting for room in the Veterans' Hospital? It would entail no cost to the city of Victoria as the federal government should foot the bill.

The land on which the Mountain View Home is built would provide a lovely site for modern high-rise apartments. Could this be the reason why some unknown influence is being exerted to empty the home and possibly make the site available for a profitable building project?

CARL FALLAS.

Mountain View

Can it be really true that our city fathers have decided to close the Old Men's Home for the sake of the few measly dollars it takes for the upkeep of same? If such is the case, have they no feeling for the poor old citizens who are living in the twilight of their years, whose rest and comfort and peace lie in the security of their last refuge in this troubled world? Have they no thought of the companionship these men will lose and of the shock of being thrown ruthlessly from the only haven of refuge they know?

'Bad Example' Set Minister Warned

Education Minister Leslie Peterson was warned yesterday that he was setting a bad example for schoolchildren in the province.

The charge was one of scores tossed across the floor of the legislature during a 30-minute free-for-all—verbal, of course—at yesterday's sitting.

Mr. Peterson skilfully needled both opposition groups into a frenzy of reaction as he flailed the criticisms voiced a day earlier by NDP-CCF leader Robert Strachan and Liberal leader Ray Perrault.

The minister, talking about power policies, said NDP stood for "No Dam Policy."

TERRIBLE THING'

"That's a terrible thing for the minister of education to say," stormed John Squire (NDP-CCF—Alberni).

"What will the kids think?" demanded Gordon Dowding (NDP-CCF—Burnaby), "I suggest you withdraw that before it goes out to be read by all the kids in the province."

"I was talking about power," answered Mr. Peterson. "You know what I meant."

SAME THING

In his criticisms Monday Mr. Strachan accused the government of "massive deception" for underspending the amounts set aside for various departments.

Mr. Peterson countered by showing that the CCF government in Saskatchewan did exactly the same thing.

"If the leader of the opposition called our figures 'massive deception' then the greatest deception in the history of Canada is being practiced in Saskatchewan," said the minister, reading from the Saskatchewan public accounts.

'GROW UP'

"Aw, why don't you grow up?" shouted Mr. Squire.

Mr. Peterson said there was bound to be unexpended sums in every province and in every country of the world and while Mr. Strachan was criticizing the government for doing this the taxpayers were applauding the government for making economies.

"Juggle the books some more," shouted Mr. Strachan. "Change the goalposts."

"No deception. No deception," called the government members.

Mr. Peterson accused Mr. Perrault of trying to ruin the credit of the province.

"Leave the kids alone," shouted David Barrett (NDP-CCF—Dewdney) as the Social Credit and NDP members roared with laughter. Three of the four Liberals are serving their first term in the legislature.

Socred Flyers A 'Fabrication'

Charges the education department was sending out Social Credit propaganda with textbooks to schools were labelled a "complete fabrication" by Education Minister Peterson yesterday.

The accusation was made earlier this session by New Democratic Party-CCF leader Robert Strachan who produced a pamphlet he said was one of many found by students in a Vancouver high school in a carton of textbooks sent from the department in Victoria.

Mr. Strachan at the time said a school principal had given him a copy of the pamphlet.

FOR PACKING

But yesterday Mr. Peterson lashed out at the charges and said the pamphlets were merely used as waste packing for the books sent out by a printer.

And, he said, the shipment arrived in August during the school holidays, not in Vancouver but in a high school at Windermere, northwest of Cranbrook.

FOUND BY JANITOR

The minister added the pamphlets were found by a janitor and not a school principal. The former had become angry and had taken one of the pamphlets—presumably to pass on to Mr. Strachan.

"His (Mr. Strachan's) story is entirely erroneous," said Mr. Peterson. "The children were not even in school at the time."

Pre-Easter Election Unlikely But June, October in Race

OTTAWA (CP) — Speculation on a pre-Easter election date faded rapidly last night amid growing indications the government intends to carry on the work of the current session of Parliament in its normal pattern.

Bets now are being made among parliamentarians the general election, expected some time this year, will be held in June.

Another large body of opinion still is unshaken in its belief the election will not be until October.

Tuesday's developments:

● Informed sources said the government probably will move today or Thursday for the formal establishment of Commons committees.

● An unusually large number of Conservative party campaign workers has been seen on Parliament Hill. Word however, is they are working in terms of a post-Easter or autumn election.

● Time is rapidly running out for the government to get royal assent this weekend on the $10 old-age pension increase and other pension legislation, increased veterans' benefits, and bills authorizing construction of new railway lines.

● It was also learned authoritatively that Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Opposition Leader Pearson spoke briefly in private Monday, but the subject of the election date was not raised by either.

● Mr. Diefenbaker is continuing to accept engagements for the next two months — and of the kind he would not be expected to accept if he planned a general election.

Not Common In Commons

OTTAWA (UPI) — A Quebec Liberal senator yesterday struck a blow in defence of the Upper Chamber against criticism of poor attendance.

Juan Francois Pouliot said attendance in the Senate was "much better" than the Commons and far greater than the British House of Lords.

Pouliot rose on "a question of privilege" to denounce a news report which said the Lords and the Canadian senate "have much in common."

Fur Seals Thriving In Pacific

OTTAWA (UPI)—A four-nation international commission found the fur seal herd in the North Pacific in good condition and on the upswing, Fisheries Minister Angus Maclean said yesterday.

He made the statement to the Commons in reporting on last week's fifth annual meeting of the North Pacific Fur Seal Commission, made up of representatives of Canada, the U.S., Japan and the Soviet Union.

Maclean said the meeting had made plans for further research in the coming months.

Couple Swims To Freedom

HERLESHAUSEN, Germany (UPI)—A young East German chimneysweep and his bride yesterday swam the icy, flood-swollen Werra River to freedom in West Germany under Communist gunfire. The man was wounded but his wife escaped unhurt.

Same Statistics Spark Jobs Row

OTTAWA (UPI)—Unemployment statistics, always good ammunition for a political fight, set off one of the liveliest skirmishes of the current session in the Commons yesterday.

Government and opposition front-benchers, both armed with the same Bureau of Statistics survey, clashed for almost an hour over the seriousness of the current jobless situation.

And, as has been the case in recent months, both sides had statistical evidence to support their argument.

JOBLESS UP

Paul Martin (L—Essex East), who led the opposition forces, pointed out that the survey showed unemployment up by 132,000 between December and January to a mid-January level of 545,000. Employment in the same period fell by 218,000.

This, charged Martin, was "an alarming situation" justifying an immediate Commons debate on the problem.

JOBLESS DOWN

Labor Minister Starr, on the government's behalf, noted that mid-January jobless figure was down 148,000 from a year ago. "Employment was up 161,000 or 2.8 per cent from 1961, he said.

"The fact is that the December-to-January increase in unemployment was smaller than in the comparable period in the past," Starr said.

Spending For Arms At Ebb

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence department spending on new weapons and equipment will fall in 1962-63 to its lowest point since the period between the Second World War and Korean War.

Estimates of federal spending in the year beginning April 1, 1962, presented at Parliament Monday, show that expenditures for this purpose will be $262,000,000 out of a total defence outlay of $1,675,792,175.

A 15,000-man increase in the armed forces was authorized last September and a fairly tight lid has been kept on the defence budget.

Defence authorities said the problem is becoming more difficult all the time. Not only does it cost more to maintain and operate the forces—pay, food, fuel and the like—but the cost of weapons and equipment goes up about five per cent every year.

VANCOUVER (CP) — New research and teaching facilities costing $41,000 have been opened for the University of British Columbia's department of paediatrics at the Vancouver General Hospital, UBC announced Tuesday.

Rebel Assault Fails in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Royal army troops repulsed a pro-Communist rebel assault on the Nam Tha front in Laos, killing 14 enemy soldiers and capturing 10 others, the defence ministry said yesterday.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Grain Exchange reflected an erratic trend in moderate trading.

The flax market rallied in late trading with modest offerings prompted by lower linseed oil prices abroad. Some overseas demand was in evidence and trade reports indicated that parcel lots of Canadian flaxseed were sold overnight to Japan.

Capital Gains Up

Gas Stock Erupts

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Among the most spectacular of the Canadian common stocks in the current bull market are those in the natural gas industry.

Since a year ago capital gains of up to 500 per cent hav been recorded in various issues.

A year ago Alberta Natural Gas Trunk was $26. Now it is $37. Trans Canada has risen from $20 to $27; Westcoast from $14 to $23 and Gas Trunk of B.C., issued last fall, has spectacularly shot from $5 to $26.

The stocks have risen in this period because most of the Canadian natural gas lines are past the initial development stage and are now in a profit making position. Added to that is the expansion of markets and volume, which sooner or later will mean an even brighter profit picture.

Nor is anyone quite sure just how far the market for Canadian natural gas will expand. It is already supplying the Pacific North West and many parts of California. It is expanding fast into the Middle West and is shortly going into the north eastern states as well.

Beside this the natural gas industry is hard at work developing new products and new concepts to widen its market.

According to Value Line of New York, natural gas is now being increasingly used for gas air conditioning. Gaslight is also regarded as being more than a passing fad, and there are gas-powered generators available to supply electric power for commercial buildings, with prospects of smaller units for home use.

Plug-in gas household appliances are also making a market appeal, and the time may not be far off when an all natural gas house becomes almost as complete in its possibilities as an all-electric house.

In those circumstances Value Line believes the potential for growth in the Canadian natural gas industry still appears vast, and we are inclined to agree.

TOO MUCH TAX

Increased spend-and-tax policies of recent Canadian governments has created a situation that 31 per cent of all the gross national product goes in government taxes, says A. S. Upton, president of Dominion Life Assurance Co., in his annual report.

Mr. Upton describes the level of taxation as the most far-reaching of all Canadian economic problems, "casting an ominous shadow over our free-enterprise economy."

Mr. Upton shares the view of Professor C. Northcote Parkinson, of Parkinson Law fame, that should the tax percentage of gross national product rise to 34 or 36 per cent, as it might do in the next few years, it could gravely threaten the present economic system.

Mr. Parkinson has also placed the collapse level at about 35 per cent taxation of the GNP.

Pacific Wins Oil Contract For Peace

VANCOUVER (CP)—Pacific Petroleums Limited has won a $3,000,000-plus contract to supply major petroleum products required during the first five years of construction of the giant Peace River power development, the government-owned B.C. Electric announced Tuesday.

Why Not Plan Recreation?

Murder Charge Due In Hotel Shootings

VANCOUVER (CP)—An inquest into the shooting deaths of a city detective and a hotel executive Friday in a hotel room gun battle, was adjourned Tuesday on instruction from the attorney-general's department because a charge of murder has been preferred.

Pathologist Dr. T. R. Harmon told the coroner's jury fraud squad detective Larry Woodrow Short, 42, and assistant manager Larry John Kingston, 31, of the Bayshore Inn, were both shot through the heart.

CAPITAL MURDER

Eric Lifton, 21, of New Hampshire has been charged with two capital murder counts. He is under police guard in a hospital here, suffering gunshot wounds.

Dr. Harmon said both the victims, killed when they went into a hotel room to question the occupant were shot twice. He said the position of the wounds indicated both men could have been shot while lying down.

LYING FACE DOWN

When found by hotel manager Joseph Mogush both the victims were lying face down.

Coroner Glen McDonald ruled the deaths were homicide, caused by gunshot wounds through the heart by a person unknown.

Sentence Delayed For King

Sentencing of former Victoria real estate agent Milton King will take place Tuesday.

But in city police court yesterday, his counsel David Hummel asked Magistrate William Ostler for a postponement "for the purpose of dealing with the circumstances."

Jets Above Just There For Training

Those jet aircraft seen flying around Patricia Bay Airport don't mean an increase in commercial air traffic. They're navy training planes.

The navy has two supersonic T-33 jet trainers in its Utility Squadron 32 stationed here and a number of naval officers in the area take them up occasionally to keep up their flight proficiency, a navy spokesman said yesterday.

They will come from secondary and elementary schools in the Saanich, Sooke, Gulf Islands, Cowichan, Lake Cowichan, Ladysmith and Parksville-Qualicum districts.

Evans, education department registrar; Charles Guiget, provincial museum; G. W. Broadley, mathematics secretary; Ross Simms, social studies teachers' vice-president; G. G. Brown, French teacher, and H. M. Palsson of Sooke, B.C. Teachers' Federation first vice-president.

City parks committee is considering establishment of a recreation commission for the city to cover all types of recreation for all ages.

The move was suggested yesterday by Ald. Michael Griffin at a meeting of city parks committee.

Frustrated by city council in an attempt to throw city parks open to amateur sporting groups without charge, Ald. Griffin proposed formation of the recreation commission in a scornful statement.

WHAT DOING?

"What are we doing in the way of a planned program for the recreational needs of our senior citizens? Our not-so-senior citizens? Our young people? Sweet beem all," he said.

"We have the authority and power, but lack the initiative to appoint a recreation commission, and in turn, one or more recreation directors to qualify for provincial grants.

FEW DOLLARS

"Rather than restricting this to the few paltry dollars we are recommending in park rent—free facilities—we suggest a much expanded and imaginative program, looking after the recreational needs of our community.

"Victoria pays the lowest in all of Canada toward the recreational needs of her citizens.

NO HESITATION

"It's a total disgrace that we have this 'distinguished honor,' something which we should correct without any more delay or hesitation."

Ald. Griffin, Ald. Millard Mooney, city manager C. C. Wyatt and parks administrator Herbert Warren were appointed to investigate the proposal.

OPEN BUILDINGS

Ald. Griffin told the committee Victoria pays $4,200 a year on recreation while Vancouver pays $415,000, Richmond $34,000, Nanaimo $11,000 and Trail $22,000.

"We will have to get the school board to open its buildings," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said.

"We cannot afford an auditorium for ourselves but we have all sorts for our youth.

"I can see parks, the school board, the symphony society and the art centre coming in on this."

Discussion began when the committee considered council's return of the recommendation on free use of parks.

The recommendation was tabled until the next meeting when a report will be presented on the recreation commission.

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

It is only by the Grace of God that we are writing this column today, because on Saturday on the Salmon River we came as close as we have ever come to drowning . . . and we lived our childhood in small boats around the tide rips of Trial Island.

The Salmon River nearly beat us, and we nearly ended up, boat and all, under a log jam.

Our trouble came after we had drifted about two miles down the river, from far up above the Memekay River. The drift had been going well. We were peering in a fast run, looking for steelhead, relaxed our attention for a second, and then it happened. We were in faster water which was drawing us towards a log jutting out into the stream.

We rowed and rowed, but couldn't get into midstream. We put the boat into a spin, to change direction, and this usually works in a river.

But, it didn't work. The bow of the boat came around fast and with a terrific crash smashed into the log, buffeted by a short thick branch. We envisioned our $300 aluminum boat smashed to a crumble. But we didn't have long to think much about anything.

* * *

The boat rode up on the log. Six-foot two-inch, 230-pound Charlie Newman was in the stern. With the bow raised, water started to pour over the stern. The boat, half-filled with cold river water slipped off the log, crashed into another log and got caught up in the swift current.

For a split second, we thought the worst was over, but it wasn't. Just 100 feet downstream, a long fir log stretched completely across the river, which was boiling up against it. If we had crashed into it, we would have been finished. Quickly we got the oars back into place and both of us rowed like crazy, with the boat half full of water and carrying two more-than-200-pound men, plus equipment. Cameras, food, waterproof clothing, life jackets and fishing tackle floated about the boat.

We didn't seem to be making much headway across the swift rapid, but we were inching ahead. As soon as we could reach the shallows, Newman jumped overboard, grabbed the boat and dragged us to shore, 25 feet from the log.

Then, we had time to be frightened. We felt a cramp coming in our leg, but we were safe ashore, although we didn't know that worse, or just as bad was ahead . . . and when you drift a river, you can't turn back . . . you must push ahead until you come to a spot where you can get your boat out. Damage was not as bad as we feared. The aluminum boat had a big dent, but a smash of the fist knocked it back into shape.

* * *

We had left Victoria at midnight Friday, in company with Newman, Frank Baker, and brother Fred. We had two cars and two boats. We arrived at Sayward just before 6 a.m., and instead of waiting for the White River Cabins or the Salmon River Hotel dining rooms to open, we headed up the logging road to above the Memekay River, where we turned left, to the spot we launched.

We had a short nap in the trucks, until daybreak, and then cooked breakfast. Before 8.30 a.m., we were on the river, not too far below canyon country. Baker and brother Fred were off first in the little eight-foot skiff. We followed and for the first mile, we fished close together. The river was high and a little too fast for good fishing, but there were some nice runs. We didn't run into falls, but sometimes rapids dropped two and three feet in short stony swift-running flows.

Baker and brother Fred drifted ahead after the first mile and drifting was quite pleasant for the first couple of miles. Never have we seen a river wind so much.

* * *

Our first spot of trouble came when we crashed into the log, but from then on we were seldom out of trouble.

Never again will we drift an unknown river, unless we can get some good information about what to expect. In fact we have made an arrangement with Vancouver Island Helicopters to make a little survey by air, before we explore them by drifting. We had drifted middle reaches of the Salmon last year.

On Saturday, we ran into log jam after log jam, swift rapid after swift rapid, jutting log after jutting log. It was dangerous drifting and we were worried. We saw no signs, footprints on the beaches or other signs, that Baker and Fred had passed along the river.

We became concerned for their safety, and after our narrow squeak, we didn't fish anymore. We just wanted out somewhere.

We came to one spot with a big log jam dead ahead and the river rushing under it. There was a narrow opening on the other side of the river, but the river was so swift we couldn't get across. We broke a new rowlock trying it.

* * *

It took us three-quarters of an hour, trying everything we knew, before we agreed the only thing to do was portage the boat around the jam, through a quarter-mile of thick alderbrush. It was tough, but we made it. Then we had half a mile of good drifting to the Memekay crossing.

There we ran into more trouble with logs across the river. Our anxiety for the others was mounting and we didn't know what was ahead. (Later we found out this was the last obstacle and there was an hour's fairly easy float ahead.) We weren't sure, but we thought, if we followed the old logging railway grade at that point we would reach the logging road. We left the boat and equipment on the river bank.

After two miles of bushwacking, we reached the road, and another two miles back down the road we found our van at the Mile 12 spot, where we had planned to pull out. There was no sign of Baker and Fred, and our worry mounted, but just as we reached the van, they reached the landing spot. They had run into a little trouble, too, but their skiff was a little easier to handle than our bigger aluminum boat.

Sunday, Baker floated the aluminum boat from the Memekay to Mile 12, and drifting was a little easier, because the river had dropped a foot.

Derby Day Productive on Nanaimo River

Fish on! Nanaimo angler Bob Kemp works struggling steelhead closer to partner Ted Harding during Nanaimo Fish and Game Association derby Sunday on Nanaimo River.

Ted has him, a nice seven-pounder, taken from Canyon Pool, just below highway bridge. Sixteen fish were weighed in, biggest nine pounds, six ounces, by Fred Withler, Nanaimo.

One apiece and time out for smoke. Kemp caught another soon after and won hidden-weight prize. Ross Coburn, Nanaimo, and E. Quist, Ladysmith, also won prizes.—(W. R. Leahy photos.)

Martin Rink Falls Behind

PENTICTON—Victoria's rink in the B.C. ladies' curling finals suffered an upset last night that might eventually cost them the title and a trip to the Canadian finals.

Mrs. Flora Martin's rink from the Victoria Curling Club was beaten, 11-10, last night by Mrs. Joyce Smart's Kelowna rink. Mrs. Smart's foursome had been winless in its previous four games.

Taking the lead, with a 4-1 record, was the Ina Hansen rink from Kimberley. Mrs. Hansen's crew defeated Mrs. Joy Mitchell of Kitimat, 7-4 after being beaten 10-5 by Mrs. Martin earlier in the evening. Mrs. Martin now has a 3-2 record.

Mrs. Hansen has only to beat Mrs. Smart this morning to cinch the title. Mrs. Martin plays Mrs. Mitchell.

Mrs. Martin, in downing Mrs. Hansen, once again made big ends pay off as she had earlier in the day when she set down Mrs. Mitchell 11-7, as she hit the Hansen rink with a pair in the second and three in the sixth and ninth to win going away.

CAME ON

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mitchell trailed through most of the early ends as Mrs. Smart tried desperately for her first win in four games, but came on strongly to score four in the ninth and coasted to the win when the Kelowna rink ran out of rocks in the final end.

Mrs. Ollie Purves of New Westminster is the new president of the association, succeeding Dorothy Hines of Penticton.

NEW WESTMINSTER NEXT

Mabel Richardson of Prince George is first vice-president and Ada Calles of Kimberley second vice-president.

New Westminster is the venue of the 1963 championships. Prince George will host the event in 1964 and Kimberley in 1965.

Reg Stone Foursome B.C. Curling Champs

VANCOUVER—It has been five years since Reg Stone last played in the Canadian curling championships but the popular veteran from Trail proved here last night that those who had written him off had acted a bit hurriedly.

Bouncing right back after taking what to many would have been a morale-shattering 11-4 trouncing from Vancouver's Howie Christopherson in the first game of the best-of-three provincial final, Stone picked up his seventh B.C. title with 12-6 and 10-9 victories at the North Shore Winter Club.

A last-rock draw to the eight-foot ring on the last end of the last game earned Reg, his brother Roy, Frenchy D'Amour and Harvey McKay a trip to Kitchener-Waterloo, where play to decide the 1962 winner of the Brier Tankard starts on March 5.

It will be the sixth trip for the Stones. They played together in 1949, 1952, 1953, 1955 and 1957 without a Dominion success. They won a provincial title during the war years when the Dominion final was suspended.

The Stones made their first Brier trip on a rink with D'Amour, who in 1948 became the only Brier-winner in B.C. curling history. Now D'Amour is back with the Stones, playing second rocks.

MISSED SHOTS

Stone and his rink didn't look too impressive in the first game after scoring two on the first end. Reg missed several crucial shots and both he and the rest of his rink appeared to have trouble getting their weight, several times being heavy on draw shots.

It was 5-4 for Christopherson after seven ends but the Interior rink never scored again, conceded after the 11th.

REVERSED SCENE

It was a reverse situation in the second game as Christopherson, Roy Vinthers, George Ingram and Charlie Gardner found it their turn to miss at key moments.

Christopherson was ahead by 4-3 after four ends but Stone picked up three on the fifth and stole single points on the sixth and seventh and was never threatened from there. The fine play of Roy Stone was a feature of the game as the Trail rink pulled even.

The experience and the coolness of the Stones stood them in good stead in the deciding game as Christopherson scored two on the first two ends to grab a 4-0 lead.

THREE BACK

Stone got three back on the third but the Vancouver rink, champions of the Pacific Coast Curling Association, got one on the fourth and stole one on the fifth to hold a 6-3 lead.

Then Stone cracked down for a four on the sixth end to go ahead for the first time.

He was never headed, and the last-rock advantage on the even ends was to prove all important. Christopherson pulled even on the seventh, ninth and 11th ends but it was the old story of the rink which goes ahead when it scores having too big an advantage.

Bruins Lead Junior Series

Esquimalt Bruins turned a friendly glance to their arch-rival Victoria Junior Cougars today—a strange occurence in the much-disputed Vancouver Island junior hockey series.

If Cougars should surprise all concerned by defeating Nanaimo tonight in the final game of the round-robin series, Esquimalt will have won the series. However, questions of player eligibility cloud the issue.

Bruins gained no worse than a tie for the title last night by defeating the Nanaimo club, 8-3, in a fast-paced game before 200 fans at Esquimalt Sports Centre. Victory gave Esquimalt a 3-1 record, left Nanaimo with a 2-1 mark and Victoria, 0-3.

NEUTRAL ICE

If Nanaimo knocks off Victoria tonight, a sudden-death game will be played between them and Esquimalt, likely on neutral ice. Date for such a game has not been established.

Bruins scored three goals in the first period last night, a period that saw Nanaimo switch goalies when their starter, Gord Garrard, suffered a twisted knee when stopping a shot. Ken Stewart went the rest of the distance.

ROOF COLLAPSES,

Nanaimo scored twice in the second period but the roof fell in on them in the third period as Esquimalt scored four goals in succession before a reply.

Bob MacNabb and Gord Morris were two-goal scorers for the winners and the remainder were split among Joe Iannerelli, Doug Couch, Gary Deforge and Claude MacKenzie.

Bob Wilson, Harvey Thein and Corky Place got unassisted goals for Nanaimo.

Overtime Victory Boost for Seals

San Francisco Seals put on a late rally at Vancouver Tuesday night to pick up a couple of points on Los Angeles Blades, the club they have to beat out for a Western Hockey League playoff spot.

Nick Mickoski, Bob Solinger and Harry Pidhirny, the old pros who have done the most for the Seals, came through again last night just when it appeared the Canucks had their second straight win.

Two quick goals in the first half of the third period had given Canucks a 4-2 lead. But Pidhirny cut the margin at 11.30 and it was Mickoski and Solinger who set up the play when Mickoski got a goal with 12 seconds left to force overtime.

Just 75 seconds into the extra period, it was Solinger from Mickoski and the Seals had a 5-4 win, which moved them within six points of the Blades. The Canucks are 28 points behind the third place club in their division of the WHL.

In last night's other game, played before 10,475 Los Angeles fans, the Blades took an 11-5 trimming from Spokane Comets, who scored five goals between 6.28 and 15.24 of the third period.

ANDY BATHGATE
... breaks slump

Seven-Point Lead Set by Ranger Ace

MONTREAL (CP) — Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers has moved seven points in front of his nearest rival, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, in a bid for his first National Hockey League individual scoring title.

The 29-year-old right winger, apparently recovered from a long slump which in January cost him a big lead, has 68 points to Howe's 61.

He went into last week's play with a slim three-point edge, but scored two goals and assisted on three others while Howe could muster only one tally.

Each player's team has 17 more games to play before the end of the present season.

Bathgate has 21 goals and a league-leading 47 assists. Howe has 26 goals and 35 assists.

Bobby Hull, the muscular blond left winger of the Chicago Black Hawks, scored three more goals and also drew two assists to take over sole possession of third spot with 58 points.

UBC officials say that a tentative schedule has been drawn up for the latter part of this year and the winter months of 1963.

Old Pros Too Slow For PGA

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — PGA champion Jerry Barber believes the older players are being driven out of tournament golf.

The 1961 golfer-of-the-year said Tuesday a PGA rule penalizing players falling behind the group in front is discriminatory.

The rule calls for a penalty of two strokes if a player fails a hole behind the group in front.

"Older players are slower players." They do more thinking. Golf is a thinking game, not a race.

"It takes four hours for me to play a round properly. Now they want us to get off the course in about three hours and a quarter."

Horsey-Horsey Films May Replace Bingo

LONDON (CP)—For people who can't get to the race track a British firm has started leading the horses to the people.

Mecca Limited, which runs a national chain of thriving bingo halls, now has organized race meetings in cinemas where punters make blind bets on sealed films of American races.

Betting works on the totalisator system. Punters buy tickets against numbered horses listed in the race program. Then a member of the audience selects one of several hundred canned races.

The seal is broken and the film projected. A dubbed commentary describes the race using numbers instead of horse's names. The tote pays off holders of the winning ticket.

Betting laws prevented the films being used in the United States but they have been regular entertainment on trans-Atlantic liners for a number of years.

Eric Morley, a Mecca director, says the film brings horse racing to the masses. "I think it is more exciting than bingo," he said. "It could be filmed roulette next.

"I will have 300 other casinos showing horsey-horsey films within three months and in nine months we will show some 1,200 films."

For jittery bookmakers who watched a recent demonstration of horsey-horsey in York, Morley soothed fears that their livelihood was threatened by explaining it was not really horse racing but betting on numbers.

"This could be the biggest publicity gimmick for your business ever," he told them.

Cranbrook MLA Flays Government

Licence Fee Jumps Predicted

By ALEC MERRIMAN

A prediction that the Social Credit government plans "another slap at sportsmen by increasing the fees" was made in the legislature yesterday by Leo Nimsick (NDP-CCF—Cranbrook), opposition spokesman on fish and game matters.

He pointed out that the recreation department has allowed for an increase in revenue of $175,000 from sportsmen in the next fiscal year and said he was "curious to know why the big jump in estimated revenue."

He said he was surprised when Willis Jefcoat (SC—Salmon Arm) suggested a fishing licence increase during the Throne Speech debate. "I think he may have been flying a kite," he said.

NEW ARRANGEMENT

(When Recreation Minister Westwood announced new-type fishing licences would be issued this year starting May 1, he indicated there would be no increase, but there has been a great deal of speculation about a new arrangement for hunting licences which could mean more cost to some hunters.)

Mr. Nimsick charged that, although an increase in revenue of $175,000 is planned from the pockets of fishermen and hunters, an increased expenditure of only $47,477 is planned in the estimates "and this will only pay for the increase in wages."

"The sportsman contributes in every other way to the consolidated revenue, and I do not believe he should be expected to further fatten the consolidated revenue by an increase in fees," he said.

He charged that sportsmen have contributed more than $2,000,000 in direct taxation to consolidated revenue.

He also charged that the Social Credit government "stole the conservation fund, which would amount to nearly $1,000,000 today."

"This policy of scalping this resource all along without anything in return must not continue," he shouted.

"I think the minister of recreation is trying to do a good job, but he has a hard, tough gang to deal with. . . . On this question I am speaking on his behalf," he said.

"If you are speaking on my behalf you can quit right now," replied Mr. Westwood.

"I didn't expect him to say anything else. They would have scalped him, if they thought he was working with me," said Mr. Nimsick.

'Archaic' Blue Laws Hurt Sport

Leo Nimsick (NDP-CCF—Cranbrook) said Tuesday sports such as hockey and bowling should be allowed on Sundays.

"Sunday is a day of recreation as well as it is a day of rest," he said in the legislature. "I believe we can also say that the family that plays together stays together."

Mr. Nimsick said it was "ridiculous" to stop any community from having hockey on Sunday because an admission charge was levied. It was a "clean and healthy" type of recreation which should not be discouraged.

He said the government should bring in legislation which would allow citizens to enjoy such sports on Sundays, doing away with what he said were "archaic" blue laws.

Vancouver Attempt April 9-14

Can Carspiel Make Big Comeback?

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP)—Can the carspiel make a successful comeback in curling?

A former Prairie sportsman who ran a couple of the big-money bonspiels in Saskatoon when they were going strong on the Prairies thinks it can in Vancouver.

Bill (Red) Hunter, with three partners, has announced a $20,000 bonspiel here April 9-14, with the winning rink getting four new automobiles.

$200 PER RINK

He's set a 96-rink limit and an entry fee of $200 a rink and has arranged a draw system that will put 32 rinks into a knockout competition leading to a sudden-death final for the cars.

The entry fees would bring in $19,200, not quite enough to pay the prize shot. Admission fees from spectators are expected to make up the balance required and, says Hunter, "If we break even on the first one, that will be an outstanding success."

The carspiel had its beginning in 1946 in Nipawin, Sask., where Scotty Moir, long-time curler and a car dealer then, organized a competition won by Howie Wood Sr. of Winnipeg.

ATTRACTIVE PRIZE

At that time, just after the Second World War, automobiles were hard to come by, so the spiel had a special attraction right off.

Many carspiels followed that one, perhaps too many for the health of the event and since Bayne Secord of Saskatoon won the Swift Current, Sask., competition in 1959 there hasn't been one on the Prairies.

The Vancouver suburb of Burnaby staged a couple but quit two years ago for financial reasons.

In the face of this, however, Hunter remains optimistic.

He has had a long history of sports management, as owner, manager and coach of the old Regina Caps hockey team and as manager and coach of teams in Medicine Hat and Saskatoon. His two carspiels in Saskatoon were successful.

He's banking on several things to make the Vancouver event successful — and hopes it will become an annual one.

First, he's scheduled all games in the week-long affair in the Kerrisdale Arena, which can seat 2,700 to watch action on five sheets of ice. In 1950, when the Canadian championships were played there, 25,000 attended.

CURLING HOLIDAY

Second, there has been a tremendous upswing in the number of active curlers in the Greater Vancouver area in recent years and Hunter says they'll be anxious to see the best in action.

Third, he says, the people from the Prairies like to come to Vancouver in early spring for a vacation and this will almost assure an entry of 40 rinks from there, including big-name skips such as last year's world champion, Hec Gervais of Edmonton, who already is committed to enter.

THERE THEY WERE

Hunter remembers the excitement of the final in that first Nipawin carspiel. The four cars sat on the ice at one end of the rink. Wood faced a double take-out and stay shot with his last rock to win.

Tension mounted as he walked from the house to the hack to throw his stone, all the time staring at those cars.

He knew immediately his rock was delivered that it was perfect and he turned and walked to the nearest car and sat down before the stone reached the other end of the ice.

Police Halt Race Racket

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—Officials said Tuesday they had smashed an illegal horse racing results service that operated from Hialeah race track and served an estimated 1,000 bookmakers. Six men were arrested.

Sheriff Tom Kelly said it was the largest illegal race-wire setup ever broken in Florida. He estimated that it served a bookie operation that has been handling $1,000,000 a week in bets across the country. The sheriff said the bookmakers were paying four of the men $900 a week to run the wire service.

Garden Notes

Oh, This Lovely Dirt!

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Most home gardeners around town have occasion to buy a few dozen annual plants from one of our excellent garden centres or plant stalls, and during the planting of these, I am sure many of us are impressed by the lovely, velvety, open-textured soil clinging to their roots, quite unlike the stuff we have to work with in our own gardens. Where do the greenhouse operators get this beautiful dirt?

Actually, the seed-sowing mixtures used by the professional plant-raisers are never just plain dirt at all, but are compounded from several ingredients as carefully blended as Aunt Martha's Boston recipe for clam chowder. Soil brought in from the backyard just "as is" never seems quite right or congenial for tiny seedling plants.

* * *

Garden soil will almost always contain too much clay, and after watering, the surface sets in a hard crust, very difficult for sprouting seeds to break through. And even when the texture is pretty good, the spores of the dreaded "damping-off" disease are lurking in it, ready to rot off the baby plants at soil level.

The old-time English and Scottish head gardeners would make quite a hoo-ha over their seed-sowing mixtures, using a different formula for each different variety of seeds, and their recipes were carefully guarded secrets, often passed down from father to son.

* * *

The plant scientists at the John Innes Horticultural Institute in England have shown an unusual talent for debunking a lot of these traditional old-time gardening practices; for instance, these are the people who proved that a greenhouse works better when laid out east and west rather than in the time-honored north-south orientation, and that it isn't necessary to take the chill off cold water before watering greenhouse plants. I suppose it was inevitable that they should turn their attention to seed-sowing and potting soil mixtures.

Painstaking experiments were carried out over a period of six years by W. J. C. Lawrence and John Newell of the institute, and their results proved beyond any possible doubt that one simple basic mixture was satisfactory for any kind of seed.

* * *

Plants started in John Innes seed-sowing mixture are at least the equal, if not better and stronger, than those from seeds sown in the esoteric formulas of the old-time professional gardeners. A simple variation in the John Innes recipe produces a mixture ideal for potting up the more mature plants, and another minor change gives the perfect mixture for rooting cuttings.

The basic ingredients are loam, peat moss and sand, and you just ring the changes in the proportions to make mixtures for the different purposes — seed-sowing, potting, and slip-rooting. I'll give you the actual formulas in tomorrow's column.

Squalor Cries for Action

BUENOS AIRES—They call them misery towns, Buenos Aires's "indescribable slums" (and then proceed to describe them), but the word slum with its connotation of brick and stone is flattery. They are shanty-towns. Everyone visits them—Adlai Stevenson, Chester Bowles, itinerant lecturers, and probably also the soon-due Prince Philip between polo matches. And everyone comes away muttering: "Something must be done."

But what? The one I visited (there are dozens in Buenos Aires, holding maybe 400,000 people) is, its inhabitants told me wryly, the oldest in Buenos Aires and you get to it through the city's beautiful and rich northern suburbs, driving past Palermo Park, certainly one of the world's great parks, down an avenue whose mansions remind you of those on the Avenue Foch in Paris.

Then you turn left two blocks and there is misery town, an enormous city block, surrounded, as they all are, by a concrete fence liked a walled castle of old. There are occasional breaks in the cement, and at each of these faces, brown, sullen, and suspicious.

* * *

At one a little girl of maybe five stood eating a peach and clutching a peso. I asked her if she'd summon the leader, generally the oldest inhabitant, who is officially designated to cope with the police who occasionally raid the place, as well as fend off other nuisances like visiting sociologists, Life photographers, Eleanor Roosevelt, Adlai Stevenson, and me. The little girl vanished and presently reappeared with a leader, a burly, hearty, gentle fellow who looks like Anthony Quinn. "Come in," he said.

Inside the cement fence it's a rabbit warren. Dirt paths dart off in all directions just wide enough for one or two people. Fences of palings wall off more tiny yards, and each shanty has a little yard eight or 10 feet square. The shanties, constructed with monstrous ingenuity of wood, of tin, of beaverboard, of tarpaper, by the inhabitants who live there rent free because the government is ashamed to evict them. It was lunch time and a family of six was seated around a tiny table on which was wine and bread and cheese and fruit, the classic lunch the world over.

* * *

"Everyone here works," said the leader. (This is not true in other parts of Latin America, but in Argentina there is a labor shortage.) "The average wage is 115 pesos a day (roughly a dollar and a half) up to 5,000 a month (roughly $62)." He'd obviously told this a dozen times to researchers and had the facts at his fingertips. "I would like to visit some of the houses," I said. The leader shook his head. "The men are at work. They don't like their womenfolk to see men while they are away."

What do the children do for amusement? "There are playgrounds in the parks and swimming pools," said the leader. "Peron built them. I was a Peronista and I still am. Life was better under Peron. I had the same job then but I got the same money for shorter hours and the pesos bought more. Also, I could have two jobs then and now I haven't time."

* * *

At the corner of the shantytown is a grocery store which sells bread and wine and olive oil to the 2,000 people of the block. The proprietor, a short round man, told me he'd been there 18 years since the squatters originally rushed in and quite illegally sat down. "I had a little cart and I sold bread. Now I have this." It's quite a nice store with stacks of wine, baskets of bread, neat rows of canned goods.

"I take in 100,000 pesos a month ($1,250) of which 20,000 ($250) is profit." Not bad considering he lives there rent free with free electricity and water from the city. "These are good people," he said. "No drunkenness, no trouble. And they pay their bills. My daughters are safe here."

* * *

"Wouldn't you like to get out of here?" I asked. "Of course," said the leader. "The bank is building houses and I have been on the list for 10 years. I was supposed to be first one in the last houses they built."

He laughed wryly. "But the people rushed in and sat down in those houses and the government can't get them out. Just as the government can't get us out here."

Old Indian Mascot — Tribal Dance for PTA

Thunderbird Myth Fades

By JOHN MATTERS

BELLA COOLA (CP)—The mythical thunderbird, a weird-looking eagle that is the mascot of coastal Indians, appears headed for extinction.

A creature standing atop many totem poles, the thunderbird has been a symbol to the outside world of the native community living on the shores of the Pacific whose people long ago mastered the art of making dug-out canoes.

Lawrence Pootlass, hereditary chief of the Bella Coola Indians — keepers of the thunderbird legend—says his people no longer take seriously the myth handed down through the generations.

Once the main ritual of tribal initiation ceremonies, the thunderbird dance now is enacted at community concerts to raise money for the Parent-Teacher Association or hospital.

* * *

Each Christmas in this town 250 miles north of Vancouver the pagan thunderbird mingles with Santa Claus on the stage of a school auditorium.

The performers have under their arms soft drink bottles filled with water, which is sprayed on the audience if the show starts to get dull.

"I don't know how long the thunderbird dance will last," said the 31-year-old chief. "My kids only see it once or twice a year."

Mrs. Pootlass and the six children live here while her 31-year-old husband works at a sawmill about 20 miles down Dean Channel. Natives once used to make their living as employees of coastal canneries, but most of those have closed in recent years.

The children, born in a United Church mission hospital here, attend the same school as white children and, like other natives, are accepted in community activities.

* * *

Until recent years Bella Coola successfully kept people out and kept others in. A group of Norwegians who travelled by sea first settled here in the 19th century and no one could make his home at the townsite without permission of Norwegian community leaders.

There wasn't an overland route to the interior of British Columbia until 1954, when members of Bella Coola Board of Trade, who said their pleas met no response from the department of highways, built a road themselves.

The route through the Coast Range involved construction of 50 miles of road, 10 through mountains.

The most famous person to walk through what now in Bella Coola was Sir Alexander Mackenzie, who made the historic journey from Fort Chipewyan, on Lake Athabaska, to the Pacific coast in 1793.

* * *

About 15 miles from town there is a rock on which Sir Alexander wrote his famous inscription in vermillion and grease: "From Canada by land, 1793."

It was 133 years later that Cliff Kopas, then living near Calgary, decided to follow the explorer's route in horseback. He and his young bride settled here and raised a family.

Mr. Kopas, who owns a general store, has been a member of the Board of Trade since it was formed 10 years ago and has become unofficial mayor of the community.

He organized townspeople into work crews which built the road through the mountains and cleared a 3,400-foot aircraft landing strip out of timber.

Busy American In Paris Films

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Tony Perkins will receive the highest salary ever paid an American actor in France—$200,000, to star in an all-French movie which follows "The Trial" that Orson Welles scripted from the Franz Kafka story and will direct. This follows "Third Dimension" with Sophia Loren—which followed "Phaedra" with Melina Mercouri. When all is done, Tony will star on Broadway in "Harold" next season.

* * *

"A Passage To India" is a success in New York. Sometimes a hit over there is not a hit here, and vice versa. Unfortunately "A Passage To India" will never be a movie. Author E. M. Forster is adamantly opposed to filming it.

* * *

My correspondent from the set of "The Longest Day" sent me a batch of news about the ten-month-long production in France where, "believe it or not, we are still fighting the great battle." John Wayne ate a bad oyster or something the day he arrived "and has been fighting his stomach ever since." Between groans and takes, John plays chess with dialogue director Mickey Knox.

Robert Ryan who plays Ambassador Gavin in the Darryl Zanuck film had a "briefing session" with the ambassador who was assistant commander of the 82nd airborne back in 1944.

Incidentally, since the blowing up of the French foreign ministry, the guard at Zanuck's home on the Rue Du Bac has been trebled. Not for Darryl's sake, for the French foreign minister, who lives in the same apartment house.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

SECOND NEWS SECTION — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1962 — PAGE THIRTEEN

Be My Valentine!

Richter Orders Probe

Big Stores Refuse Meat Killed Under B.C. Laws

B.C. Agriculture Minister Frank Richter told the Colonist last night his department is investigating a report that three large supermarket chains have refused to buy meat killed under provincial supervision.

He said the inquiry was sparked by a meeting he had yesterday with a delegation representing eight Fraser Valley abattoirs.

The delegation could not tell him why the provincially-inspected meat was being refused.

LOSE NO TIME

"There is simply no indication as to why," the minister said.

He said his department will lose no time in contacting the three chains named by the delegation.

"I'm quite anxious about it."

Mr. Richter said federal meat inspectors accept provincially-inspected animal health standards without question.

NOT BE HONEST

Earlier yesterday at a meeting of the metropolitan board of health Dr. Abraham Kidd, chief veterinary inspector for B.C., said in reply to a question that provincially-inspected meat is not as thoroughly inspected as federally-inspected meat.

"I would not be honest if I had said so," he added.

If reports of the chain stores' refusal are correct, he said, and if this is the basis for complaint, "then I would think we would have no alternative but to put a man in our abattoirs at all times when there is a kill."

Reeve Fears 'Voting Fund' In Sidewalks

Reeve Stanley Murphy said last night there is a danger the yearly appropriation for sidewalks in Saanich will degenerate into a "campaign fund" for council members seeking re-election.

"I'm worried," the reeve said at the conclusion of a lengthy discussion on allocation of $35,000 earmarked for sidewalks in the provisional budget. The program as a whole remained unsettled, but public works committee gave green light to one stretch of sidewalk at Gordon-- Head elementary school.

"We have to accept the municipal engineer's recommendations on roads, sewers and sidewalks," said Reeve start having reservations on the sidewalk allocations now, I don't know."

REVISED LIST

Nevertheless, the committee voted to request the engineer to prepare a revised list of sidewalk projects giving priority to elementary schools "where all other things are equal."

It will recommend to council that $2,500 for a gravel sidewalk on Kenmore from Tyndall Avenue to Gordon Head elementary school be included in the estimates. The action makes it virtually certain this project will be carried out, whatever the final sidewalk program for the municipality.

WORST THING

Coun. Robert Chard, who proposed the "elementary schools - first" resolution, warned that the "worst thing we can possibly do now" is to fail to fix a firm policy on sidewalks.

"If we show ourselves to be sentitive to hot little pressure groups we're going to be bullied until time immemorial," he said.

He added that the sidewalk allocation in the provisional budget should not be regarded as "sacrosanct" and suggested some money could be taken from the amount earmarked for boulevard work.

The suggestion brought a stern rebuke from Coun. Joseph Casey, chairman of finance, who said "you can't fish a figure out of the air, you have to know where the money is coming from."

Soldiers Find Man's Body

Badly-decomposed body of a man clad in jeans and a jacket was found floating offshore by Albert Head army camp personnel yesterday. Little or no description of the body was available last night. It was believed to have been in the sea some time.

Speak Up About Birthday

The Grogg inquiry into what is wrong and right with Victoria's centennial plans will hold public hearings this week.

Five public meetings have been set for the Georgian Lounge in the Empress Hotel at 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 7.20 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

HIRED FOR SURVEY

They will be conducted by Sam Grogg, representative of the professional consultants hired to carry out a $1,000 survey of the plans.

More than 1,000 invitations to attend the meetings have been sent to individuals, clubs and organizations throughout Greater Victoria.

WANT AND HELP

Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday the meetings will find out what people want in the way of celebrations and what help can be expected from various groups.

"After these meetings are concluded the results will be analyzed professionally and recomendations for both program and budget will be made to the centennial committee," he said.

"Now is the time for people to speak up."

Health Tab Shunned

Councillors Cagey On Hospital

Representatives of Greater Victoria municipalities yesterday offered their blessings to a plan to build a $200,000 addition to Gorge Road Hospital—provided it doesn't cost them any money.

RIDER REQUIRED

"I think we should support this in principle but add a rider that these things have wider responsibilities than the municipalities," Coun. Allan Cox of Oak Bay suggested when the Greater Victoria Metropolitan board of health heard of the plan.

"I feel the same as Coun. Cox of Oak Bay," said Coun. Joseph Casey of Saanich. "We know it is necessary for the community, but where do these demands on the municipalities quit?

"My experience with this sort of thing is that if you endorse something you end up with the tab in your hand."

The plan was explained to the board of health by Ray Walker, administrator of Gorge Road Hospital.

He said the program would be partly paid by grants from the provincial government, and possibly the federal government, and a $35,000 building fund held by the hospital.

"We are asking the community for $65,000," he said.

City welfare administrator William Hooson explained that "at this time" the $65,000 will probably be raised by public subscription, but that nothing definite had been decided.

The building program outlined by Mr. Walker would not add beds to the hospital but would expand physiotherapy facilities and add hydrotherapy.

Mr. Walker estimated that with the new facilities the hospital could treat about 100 outpatients as well as inpatients.

The health board endorsed the proposed addition in principle, and recommended it to the public as a necessary facility under the board's public health program.

Library Films Free Today

Three films will be shown in a one-hour free movie session at Victoria Public Library starting at 3 p.m. today.

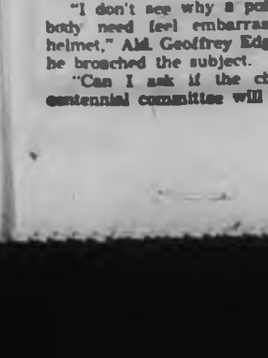

Two of the films, "Lismer" and "Legend of the Raven," are in color. The other is "Man of Music."

Pacific Club Picks President

Members of the Pacific Club, oldest such organization in the Pacific Northwest, last night elected Robert Hogarth president for the coming year.

Vice-president is Jack Phillion, and directors include past president Stewart Smith, Patrick Haggerty, George Evans, Thomas Monaghan, Dr. D. H. Hare and Lorne Merkley. Secretary is Harry Ward.

Launched in 1894, the Pacific Club was a reorganization of the old Victoria Club which was formed in 1885.

High-Rise Preferred By Oak Bay Committee

Recommendations against zoning for a three-storey apartment block on Beresford Street will be made to Oak Bay council by the lands, buildings and planning committee.

The move was made last night following a public hearing last week at which 12 ratepayers complained that building of an apartment would depreciate the value of their property.

But the committee spoke in favor of high-rise apartments.

MORE SPACE

Apartments with minimum heights of six storeys would create more open space between buildings, said Councillor Fred Robinson.

He mentioned one Beach Drive area now cluttered with small apartments. "Had this been properly developed with high-rise there would have only been two buildings on the property," he said, and likened the area bounded by Currie, Godwin and Beach Drive to a "potential slum."

Away 36 Hours

Two Missing Boys Back Home Safely

Two 12-year-old Victoria boys were safe at home last night after being missing for 36 hours.

Robert Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Matthews, 2644 Blanshard, a Grade 6 student at St. Louis College, and Wayne Coburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Coburn, 2640 Blanshard, in Grade 5 at North Ward School, left home for school Monday morning.

They never got there—and late in the day were reported missing.

Shortly after suppertime last night, they returned home. Why had they taken off?

They didn't know, they told their parents. They just went.

They spent Monday night "not far from home," and were found Tuesday morning by the truant officer—so spent Tuesday at school.

They were a bit reluctant to go home then, but made it.

Free Parking Revival Cooled Off

The touchy issue of free parking permits came up yesterday at a meeting of city traffic committee but was quickly dropped again.

Ald. Michael Griffin suggested permits for school board members so they could work "without the one-armed bandits forever tagging them."

The subject was dropped when Mayor R. B. Wilson suggested that "until there is an official request, the committee do nothing."

Boy Cyclist City Traffic Victim

* * *

City police have asked for any eyewitnesses to a fatal accident on Pandora near Cook yesterday to get in touch with them.

Traffic officers are trying to establish what direction 13-year-old Gerald Griffin, 2221 Lydia, was riding his bicycle when he struck a car driven by Gordon Burleson, 1344 Thurlow Road.

GOING TO SCHOOL

The boy was dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital emergency ward.

He was on his way from his home near the hospital to South Park School on Douglas Street near Beacon Hill Park when the fatal accident occurred about 8.15 a.m.

Inquest will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at McCall's funeral home.

BOTH AT HOSPITAL

The death was the first traffic fatality of 1962 for the city of Victoria.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Marie Griffin, a nurse's aide, and his grandfather, William Rowlandson, an engineer in the Jubilee maintenance department, were both at work at the hospital when he was brought in on a police stretcher.

Police said it was not certain what course the boy took just before the accident.

Burleson's car was going east on Pandora and had just passed through the Cook Street intersection when Griffin apparently darted south across Pandora on his bicycle.

DISTANCE GIVEN

The boy and his bicycle were dragged in front of the car for about 50 to 60 feet, said police.

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

YOUNG AT HEART: Before coming to Victoria for the session Leo Nimsick, the NDP-CCFer from Cranbrook, called in to see Tom Uphill, the elderly firebrand independent who held the Fernie seat for 40 years before his retirement in 1960.

"Tom would have liked to attend the session this year, but he is not very well physically," Mr. Nimsick said yesterday. "But he still carries a sense of humor and is always ready to joke.

"I asked him when he got married, and he said he got married the same day his wife had."

Mr. Nimsick said some recognition should be made of Mr. Uphill's lengthy term of service and suggested a photograph be hung in the corridor and his name be given to some appropriate structure in Fernie.

KISS AND TELL: Say, what's going on in our public schools?

Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the legislature yesterday:

"We pay grants for the bussing of pupils."

Calling Dr. Kinsey, calling Dr. Kinsey!

FOWL AFFAIR: Outdoors editor Alec Merriman ordered the roast duck in the legislative restaurant yesterday.

When the waitress brought the order Alec was a little embarrassed to see he had been given a whole duck instead of the halves everyone else was served with.

Nothing daunted, Alec showered the bird with pepper and salt and dug his fork into the carcass.

There was a dull thud.

"It's hollow," said an astounded Alec.

It was, too. In fact it was a plastic duck similar to the type used in stores to show how much food can be crammed in a refrigerator.

Seems the waitresses have been having a fine time with the gag.

Earlier in the day they tried it on Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz but he suspected something was wrong right from the start.

But not our Alec.

He obviously doesn't know a game bird from a bird game!

EXOTIC DEPARTURE: Commercial for a "Gourmet Survival Kit" was broadcast over KABL, Oakland, about 3 a.m. Monday.

The column spy who heard it said it wasn't a gag.

It began with a brief reflection on the horrors of six weeks on bread and water, then went on . . .

"Imagine the thrill, sitting in your shelter, opening your wicker hamper and finding caviar, escargots, French-fried grasshoppers . . ."

* * *

SO WHO'S PERFECT, DEPT.: A letter from the Financial Post arrived at the desk of our Harry Young yesterday.

It was addressed to "The Bisuness Editor."

FINISHING TOUCH: A spy coming to work yesterday noted this sign at the Oak Bay Theatre . . .

Knickerbockers for Edgelow?

* * *

The controversy over bobby helmets for city policemen will come to a head soon as a centennial celebrations issue.

Over strenuous opposition from Ald. Michael Griffin and Ald. A. W. Toone, city parks committee has voted to find out if there isn't one city policeman who would be willing to wear a bobby helmet during the tourist season as a "centennial contribution" in the Causeway-legislative buildings area.

"I don't see why a policeman or anybody need feel embarrassed wearing a helmet," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said when he broached the subject.

"Can I ask if the chairman of the centennial committee will spend the summer wearing knickerbockers?" asked Ald. Griffin.

"I think it is a little different, asking me to wear knickerbockers," Ald. Edgelow shot back. "We are a tourist town. I don't think it is being unreasonable in asking them to wear helmets."

Ald. Griffin: "The police have said they don't want to wear them. It is not a matter of co-operation. I asked the policeman down in the area if he would like to wear one and he told me in no uncertain terms he didn't want to."

The motion was carried with Ald. Griffin and Ald. Toone voting against it. Ald. Edgelow, Mayor R. B. Wilson and Ald. Millard Mooney voted in favor.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A recent column dealing with men who dine alone left your readers with some mistaken notions.

Such men are not necessarily anti-social sour-pusses. It could be that they are just plain fed up with the sound of voices and wish to enjoy a few blessed moments of silence.

I am qualified to speak on this subject because I am one of those individuals who must talk to people (or listen) all day long, either on the telephone or in person.

Lunch alone is a treat. I look forward to it. It affords me an opportunity to relax. I can read if I feel like it — or just indulge in my favorite sport—people-watching.

It is unfair to suggest that lone diners are oddballs and I hope that you will print this letter to set the record straight. —ONE WHO EATS ALONE AND LIKES IT

Dear One: Here is your letter—and a good one it is, too. The next letter is from a kindred spirit. Perhaps you two ought to eat together.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: You and your big mouth. This noon I went to my favorite little restaurant for lunch. I like to eat alone and all the waitresses know it.

Today a waitress shoved your column in my face and said, "See, Ann Landers said you should have company."

Two seconds later she seated an insufferable windbag at my table. He handed me his business card and tried to sell me insurance. I put the newspaper in front of my face but he didn't take the hint. I gobbled my lunch and left.

If you need a "cause," Ann Landers, why don't you do something for those unfortunate neurotics who can't bear to be by themselves for five minutes. They are the ones who need help. — SELF SUFFICIENT.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a high school junior, almost 17, and I need some advice on love. I can't talk to my mother about this because she's too old to remember what love was like. She is 42.

For five straight months I dated Rick. He was the most to say the least. Thrillsville, no less. We necked a lot but I managed to keep him within the city limits, if you get what I mean.

After a while he got pretty demanding and every time we had a date we'd wind up arguing about the same old thing. The struggle was getting to be too much of a problem so I returned his ring and sweater and told him goodbye. He is dating other girls now and I am dating other fellows.

The boys I date are really much nicer than Rick, and they are no threat to my purity. But I miss Rick like crazy. Am I nuts? — LOVE LTD.

Dear Ltd.: No, you're not nuts, just human. The rogues and scoundrels often have a fatal fascination, just as forbidden fruit can be especially alluring.

But the smart girl tells herself it's not worth it. Congratulations for having the sound judgment and the strength of character to choose the right course. You won't regret it.

Ancients Ousted Romance In Definition of Love

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—This Valentine Day printed words of love send hearts racing a dizzy way.

But some ancient words on cupid's sickness approach the subject in a detached, diagnostic way—telling of love in a sage but not always romantic way.

Back in the year 1 BC, it was said that "love is a kind of warfare."

By 10 BC, love was called "a kind of anxious fear." But by 98 AD, the course changed somewhat. In that year, a philosopher called love—"the best instructor."

Samuel Daniel, in the 17th Century, took a dimmer view, saying: "Love is a sickness, a torment of the mind, a tempest everlasting."

Things weren't much better by the year 1910. One writer defined the sting from cupid's arrow as "the stupidity of two."

One proverb holds that the cause of love, the romantic type celebrated today, isn't so mysterious after all. The maxim: "A man falls in love just as he falls down the stairs. It is an accident."

You have a choice when thinking of a cure for love. The French say "love makes time pass; time makes love pass." But Dryden in 1700 claimed "love's a malady without a cure."

Curable or not, love's supposed to be powerful. One sage wrote that "love moves the sun and the other stars."

The French, not to be outdone, have a proverb that covers the subject. It claims: "'Tis love, love, that makes the world go 'round."

The "wisest of Englishmen" is credited with coining the proverb relating to the misery of love. It goes like this: "The course of true love never ran quite easily since time began."

The men of letters even considered the subject of love and poverty. John Keats wrote — "Love in a hut with water and a crust is . . . cinders, ashes, dust."

An old maxim puts it this way: "When poverty goes in at one door, love goes out at the other."

There's a wide choice when you consider love in relation to wisdom. Francis Bacon said: "It is impossible to love and to be wise."

But a 16th century epigram holds that the "best wits are soonest caught by Cupid."

If you go the long way around, that might explain the boom in teen-age marriages—and mark the young lovers a witty lot.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Stewart, 624 Langford Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Joanne, to Mr. Richard Edward (Ted) Bradshaw, son of Mrs. R. R. Forth officiating.—(Chevrons photo.)

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Signals should be helpful weapons for defenders, so when the cards you play cannot possibly be of assistance to partner, use them to confuse and confound declarer. It is most unprofitable to get such a reputation for soundness that your opponents always count upon you to "light their pathway." At least, vary the pace. Be an honest man one day, and a scalawag the next! Give 'em land mines—not road maps.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♡	2 ♣	Pass
3 N.T.	All pass

Opening lead: ♡ Q

West was the nice guy in today's deal. North and South knew this "Helpful Henry," which perhaps explains their somewhat aggressive bidding.

Against the three no-trump contract, West led his top heart and South won the ace. He banged the ace and nine of clubs, and West was in to play another heart, which dummy won.

As the three high clubs were cashed, West discarded, in order: the diamond eight, the spade deuce and the spade eight. (East signalled in spades.) Declarer got the message. He played a spade to his ace, eliminating that suit from West's hand, and put West in with a heart. West could now take his three heart tricks, but had to lead a diamond up to South's ace-queen at trick twelve.

If West had discared the spade eight, then the diamond two and eight, South would almost certainly have tried for his ninth trick via the diamond finesse.

He said as much to his partner after the rubber was over, "That Henry is such a nice guy. So honest. It's a shame he never wins."

Good Liquor Dumped Down Drain

BOSTON (AP) — A liquor concern couldn't even give away its supply of more than 3,000 bottles of rye whisky and bourbon Tuesday — so every bottle was emptied down the drain.

The Sidney Flashman Company, distillers and liquor brokers, had to get rid of the liquor because it was moving.

The liquors were samples for tasting. Because no tax is required on such bottles the company could neither sell nor give it away under the law.

The company solved the problem by dumping all the contents in a sink while a policeman stood by.

Will Ottawa Drop Columbia Treaty?

National Liberal campaign chairman Walter Gordon said here yesterday there was some concern that the federal government may drop the Columbia River treaty.

The government could have ratified the Canada-U.S. treaty for the hydro-electric power development of the river at any time during the past year, he maintained.

FULL STUDY

The fact Ottawa didn't do this "raises considerable doubts as to what the federal government's intentions are."

Mr. Gordon also urged a full study of the treaty by a parliamentary committee which would have power to call witnesses with both pro and con views as to whether the treaty is a good or bad one for Canada.

It might well be, he said, that the treaty should be renegotiated to give Canada a better deal.

"I have never heard of anybody who has studied the treaty, except Justice Minister Fulton, say that it was a good deal," he said. "This treaty will always be suspect unless it is first given a full airing."

It might not be necessary for a full renegotiation with the U.S.—modifications might be made which would give Canada greater benefits.

GOOD THING?

Asked if he thought the proposals of Premier Bennett to sell Columbia River downstream benefits in the U.S. at five mills was a good thing, the noted economist stated:

"As far as I'm aware he has never said whom he is going to sell it to and at what price."

(Premier Bennett has stated he can sell the downstream power benefits to Bonneville Power Administration for this price.)

SIGN CONTRACT

Mr. Gordon said that if Premier Bennett could make such a deal he should sign a contract with the Americans immediately.

The Liberals, said Mr. Gordon, have modified the traditional stand on power export and now said export of electricity could be made under certain circumstances as long as the needs of Canada were safeguarded and the price was right.

IS CONFIDENT

He accused the Conservative government of "incredibly bad" mismanagement of the nation's affairs during the past four years and said he is confident the Liberals would win the next election.

Mr. Gordon would not predict the date, "but we've got a first-class program although we haven't yet done enough to get it across to the public."

Some proposed social security measures had already been announced and more would come shortly, including a medical plan which would provide for payment of doctors' bills.

Everyone would like tax cuts, he said, but unless some way could be found to cut expenditures in government it was rather difficult to see how tax reductions could be made.

"I hope the Liberal party will be a little reserved . . . well, I hope it won't promise to do things — and I'm sure they won't—that can't be put into practice in a reasonable period."

Busy Thieves Ransack Three Firms

Thieves were active in Victoria overnight Monday, breaking into at least three buildings and failing to enter a fourth.

More than $90 was stolen from the T. Eaton Co. warehouse where a fire axe and hammer were used to force open two cash registers.

PENNY THEFT

About $1.50 in pennies was stolen from Deighton's service station, 752 Caledonia, where entry was gained through a garage window.

Drawers and an unlocked safe were ransacked with nothing reported missing, at the wholesale car accessory firm of Reynolds, Colgate and Barbour, 1128 Vancouver.

Another attempt to break into Buckerfield's Ltd., 2105 Douglas, failed.

Two Women In Masks Rob Another

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Two women wearing black masks, one of them carrying a long knife, yesterday robbed a woman of $300.

Mrs. Frank Vigodny was just walking out her front door when she was grabbed by the two masked females.

They forced her upstairs, made her lie down on the bed, and covered her with a blanket. They then grabbed $300 from a purse and escaped out of the front door.

Pay Back the Innocent Socred Asks Bonner

Irvine Corbett (SC — Yale) said Tuesday people wrongly charged in police court cases should be reimbursed for the costs involved in proving their innocence.

Speaking in the budget debate in the legislature, he said some police court magistrates are not listening to citizens charged, particularly under the Motor Vehicles Act.

He asked the attorney-general to take a long look at proceedings in some police courts in B.C.

* * *

Mr. Corbett also said citizens of B.C. should be able to haul as much fruit as they like anywhere in the province without restriction. Some farmers were hauling as many as 40 boxes from the interior to the coast and selling them there.

When forests are closed to logging operations during fire seasons, they should be closed to all others, too, Mr. Corbett said.

* * *

Stan Carnell (SC — Peace River South) asked the trade and industry department to study the possibilities of freighting dressed meat from the Peace River area to Vancouver markets.

He said if the provincially-owned Great Eastern Railway could provide fast transportation at low enough cost, then interests in his area could be encouraged to build a packing plant in the Peace River region.

* * *

Labor Minister Peterson said labor legislation enacted by the provincial government during the last two years has done a great deal to maintain labor peace in the province.

He said opposition members have claimed the government's labor laws would destroy the trade union movement.

Instead, he said, there has been an increase in the number of trade union members and locals during the last year.

* * *

Highways Minister Gaglardi said the B.C. government will see that Highway 16 is brought up to standards to meet the truck traffic expected to result from a ferry link between Prince Rupert and Alaska.

* * *

Leo Nimsick (NDP-CCF—Cranbrook) accused the government of allowing favored treatment for Highways Minister Gaglardi's Kamloops constituency by allowing $133,000 for snow removal, nearly three times the $48,000 allowed for snow removal in his Cranbrook riding.

Super-highways for the travelling public are built in B.C., but the archaic open range laws allow cattle and horses to wander at will over these highways as they did 50 years ago in the horse and buggy days, Mr. Nimsick also charged.

* * *

British Columbia discriminates against native Indians just as much as the southern United States does against Negroes, Mr. Nimsick further charged.

"Let us give these people equal rights with other citizens," he appealed.

"It is a terrible reflection on a government if little children are sentenced to burn to death because their parents are too poor to provide the proper housing," he said.

Court Closes 'Fair Lady'

NEW YORK (AP)—A Supreme Court justice Tuesday ordered the end of the record run of "My Fair Lady"—at least, at the Mark Hellinger Theatre.

Violation of a theatre order to halt the sale of "twofers"—two admissions for the price of one—and advertising not approved by the theatre brought about the order to halt the longest run, almost six years, a musical has ever had on Broadway.

* * *

The theatre owners are reported to want "My Fair Lady" out to make way for Richard Rodgers' musical "No Strings."

* * *

Justice Owen McGivern dismissed producer Herman Levin's request for an injunction against the theatre terminating his contract and ordered the production to vacate the Hellinger by Feb. 22.

* * *

Levin told his lawyers to appeal. He did not say whether he would shift to another theatre if the appeal fails.

"My Fair Lady"—based on Shaw's Pygmalion and adapted by Lerner and Loewe—opened March 15, 1956, with Rex Harrison and Julie Andrews in the leading roles.

* * *

Despite several cast changes, the production continued to draw crowds and last night's performance was its 2,475th, the record for a musical and third among all productions ever staged on the great white way. Only "Life With Father," 3,213 performances, and "Tobacco Road," 3,182, rank ahead of "My Fair Lady."

Holiday for 20 After Blaze

SMITH FALLS, Ont. (UPI) —Twenty children got an unexpected holiday when their school went up in flames yesterday.

The fire razed the 100-year-old building despite efforts by an Ontario Hydro helicopter pilot to snuff out the flames with his propeller wash.

Massive Blast Murder

'Like End of World'

TORONTO (CP)—A bomb blast "like the end of the world" killed Newfoundlander Walter Yetman Tuesday and scattered his car over a block and one-half of west-end Toronto.

Four hours later, police stopped a car in the east end and held its driver, "a prime suspect," for questioning.

Reason for the killing was not known.

The blast was heard five miles away and blew windows out of houses a block away.

Insp. William Culver of the Metropolitan Toronto Police bomb squad said it caused "the most fantastic aftermath of an explosion I've ever seen."

Yetman, a city garbage incinerator crane operator and father of five children who came here from Newfoundland seven years ago, was starting his car to drive to work. Seconds before, Aoysius Leahy, Yetman's boarder, left the car to pick up something he had forgotten in the house.

Speculation was that the bomb was rigged to the starter.

The hood was lifted 25 feet into a tree. A spring flew through a window in Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Walsh's home and stuck in a wall. Only the frame remained in place.

"It's a vicious act," said Police Chief James Mackey. "It's a lucky thing 15 or 20 people weren't killed."

Former City Engineer G. M. Irwin Dies at 76

A former city engineer for 15 years, Gifford Melville Irwin, 76, of 2565 Beach Drive, died yesterday in St. Joseph's Hospital after a brief illness.

He was born in Minnedosa, Man., in 1885 and had lived in Victoria for 30 years. He graduated from McGill University in engineering and served overseas as a captain with the Canadian Army in the First World War.

RETIRED IN 1950

Employed by the city engineer's department in Vancouver before coming to Victoria as assistant city engineer, Mr. Irwin became city engineer in 1935 and held the post until his retirement in 1950.

He was a member of the Professional Engineers Association of B.C., a life member of St. Andrew's Lodge No. 49 AF & AM, a member of Victoria Lodge of Perfection A & ASR and a member of the Victoria Chapter of the Rose Croix.

Surviving are his widow, Olive, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Richard Stapells of Penticton; two sons, John and Harold, both of Victoria; two brothers, William and Wilfred, both of Vancouver, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at Hayward's funeral home at 1.30 p.m. tomorrow, Rev. Dr. F. E. H. James officiating.

Self-Help 'Miracle Healer'

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Second of a Series

Doctors have re-discovered two old weapons for the battle against disease—self-help and neighborly kindness.

Sick and injured people are being brought from their beds much sooner than they were. Some who used to be regarded as chronic invalids and stored away like lumber in nursing-home beds, are now being induced to walk, or push themselves about in wheel chairs.

Among these people are half-paralysed victims of strokes—the clotting of blood vessels in the brain. Many stroke victims do not stand much chance of getting better; but doctors and physiotherapists, working together, have restored encouraging numbers of them to motion.

The doctors and physiotherapists follow a simple rule—persuade the patient to help himself. The patient is the only person who can build up his own muscles, and persuade nerve impulses to find new pathways.

Some of these patients, brought to their feet by the "miracle" of self-help, can go home. Others go to nursing or boarding homes.

Amateurs Assist

In either case, their improved condition saves money. A patient who can feed himself and move about is cheaper to look after than a patient who must be waited on.

Families and neighbors are pressed into service as the doctor's amateur helpers, when a rehabilitated patient goes home.

At this point neighborly kindness becomes an important healing device. By welcoming the patient, making a place for him—and yet giving him a chance to be as self-reliant as possible — family and friends can help his recovery.

Today's complex problems of medicine demand careful, scientific planning. Technical progress — the invention of new machines and laboratory methods—have made medicine more impersonal.

Balanced against this trend is an increasing need for the ordinary citizen to be an instrument of healing—to play a grander part in helping himself and his neighbor to get well.

The Royal Commission on Health Services, due to make a one-day stand at the Empress Hotel in Victoria, Feb. 19, is serving a number of useful purposes. One of its purposes is to catch the layman's attention and enrol him as the doctor's helper.

Can Save Fortune

The forces of neighborly kindness and medical planning, working together, can save millions of dollars in hospital and nursing home costs.

Winnipeg General Hospital saved $268,430 in two years by a home-care medical program, financed through federal-provincial health grants.

Visiting teams from the hospital attended patients at home—thereby saving the occupancy of 33 hospital beds and 27 nursing-home beds. Family help and psychological support helped in recovery.

Record-keepers of Britain's National Health Service discovered that single people were much more likely to go to hospital than married people.

In relation to their numbers, twice as many single, widowed or divorced people went to hospitals. The proportion rises with age. About two-thirds of all the hospital beds in the country occupied by those aged over 65 are taken by the single, widowed or divorced.

Crowding Deplored

The loneliness of an impersonal, machine society is acknowledged by doctors to be one of the forces that drive people toward mental and physical breakdown.

The Tyhurst report on mental health services urges that mental patients be removed from prison-like segregated mental hospitals and treated in unlocked psychiatric wings of general hospitals, within easy reach of their home communities.

Dr. James S. Tyhurst, professor and head of the department of psychiatry, UBC medical school, has long campaigned to bring the victims of emotional disorders back into the everyday world.

Manitoba Psychiatric Association, in its brief to the royal commission on health services, deplored the concentration of 6,000 patients in three large understaffed and overcrowded provincial government institutions.

Most British Columbia psychiatrists hold similar views of the institutions in this province.

Volunteers Needed

Dr. Tyhurst recently called mental illness "the largest special medical and hospital program in Canada." Half Canada's hospital beds are occupied by patients with psychiatric disorders. One Canadian in 12 will enter mental hospital.

New drugs and psychiatric methods have made it possible for people to be released more rapidly from mental hospitals than they once were.

Here again the neighbors can help the patient by treating him as a human being, not as an oddity; and by finding him a job if he can handle one.

Canadian Mental Health Association is recruiting a force of volunteers to help in rehabilitation. (Applicants must be screened to eliminate people who are themselves emotionally disturbed.)

These and other voluntary groups provide an example of the way that citizens can help the doctor.

Nyasaland Secession Demanded

ZOMBA, Nyasaland (Reuters—Negro nationalist leader Hastings Banda Tuesday told British Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys he was still determined that Nyasaland secede from the Rhodesian Federation.

Banda, who heads the Malawi Congress party, had two days of talks with Sandys, who flew back to Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, Tuesday.

Parisian protesters, as far as the eye can see, jammed Avenue de la Republique yesterday as 300,000 people marched in silent protest against the secret French army organization and police repression of demonstrations against rightwing terrorists. The crowd was taking part in mass funeral for victims of last week's street fighting. No incidents occurred. — (AP Photofax)

All Paris Stops As 300,000 Join in Protest

PARIS (UPI)—The Communists yesterday tied up the country with a general strike that brought 300,000 Frenchmen into the streets of Paris—one of the greatest crowds since the 1944 liberation.

The show-of-strength operation defied a government ban. It was in protest against the Algerian policies of both President de Gaulle and rightwing terrorists.

There was no violence.

MOST EFFECTIVE

The strike was called by the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor. Veteran observers said it was one of the most effective ever seen in this country where political walkouts are frequent.

POWER CUT

Railroads were at a virtual standstill. Flights in and out of the city's two big airports were cancelled for two hours. Electricity and gas were cut for varying lengths of time. There were no mail deliveries. Garbage remained uncollected. Subways and buses stopped for two hours. Schools and shops were closed. Many factories were idle for most of the day. No newspapers appeared.

STRIKE TIMED

The strike was timed to coincide with the funerals of eight persons killed in last Thursday's rioting over the Algerian situation. All but two of the victims were Communists.

The Communist party organized the funeral and urged a large attendance. Parisians poured into the streets. Official police estimates said at least 150,000 workers marched in a procession a mile and a half long to the Pere Lachaise Cemetery. Another 150,000 lined the streets to watch.

No unusual police measures were taken. But the demonstration was controlled by Communist officials. It was completely orderly.

WALL-TO-WALL

The main throng of marchers stretched wall-to-wall across the broad Avenue de la Republique, filling its entire 1½-mile length from the square to the cemetery.

Powers Given Drugs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television commentator David Brinkley of NBC said Tuesday night Francis Gary Powers has confirmed his U-2 spy plane had mechanical trouble before it was downed in Russia in May 1960.

Brinkley also claimed that, "for more than three months before the Moscow trial, Powers was kept in total isolation, given what is called a psychological conditioning, including some drugs, before he was put on the stand to answer a series of questions."

There was no comment from official sources on Brinkley's statement.

West May Use Summit Bid To Bait Nikita

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday discussed with the British and French ambassadors Allied diplomatic strategy which some high officials believe will lead to a summit conference with Russia this summer or fall.

Administration sources said the strategy is to hold out the possibility of a top level meeting as "bait" to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in an effort to secure Russian concessions at the Geneva disarmament talks and to keep the Berlin crisis subdued.

The Russian reaction is expected to give some more specific idea of just how much political trouble Khrushchev has at home and how serious he considers the Soviet's widening ideological split with Red China.

'PEACE OFFENSIVE'

Officials acknowledged that Rusk's meeting with ambassadors Herve Alphand of France and Sir David Ormsby-Gore of Britain was concerned with how to handle Khrushchev's new "peace offensive."

THREE AGREE

The three Western powers have agreed to reject Khrushchev's proposal for a summit conference to open the March disarmament talks March 14. But Britain and the United States intend to tell the Russian leader a summit conference might be held later if there is progress at Geneva and no worsening of the cold war on other fronts.

SIDESTEP CHARGED

In Moscow yesterday, officials reaffirmed Russian opposition to disarmament controls and said the U.S. was trying to sidestep Premier Khrushchev's call for a summit meeting.

MAY SHOW UP

There was a widespread belief among Kremlin diplomats that Khrushchev will show up at Geneva on March 14 and thus bring heavy pressure on Kennedy and Macmillan to go there at the same time.

It was thought that the Soviet premier could score a big propaganda victory by attending the conference.

NOT CHANGED

Washington officials emphasized that Khrushchev's summit proposal and the tone of his approach had not altered Kennedy's intention to make a firm decision by the end of this month on whether to resume U.S. nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

High Schools Disappear This Year

By PETER BRUTON

The term "high school" is to be abolished in B.C. this year, Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the legislature yesterday.

Schools will be known as "elementary" and "secondary" schools — one of many new changes to be wrought in the B.C. education system as a result of the Chant royal commission report of a year ago.

NEW PROGRAM

Mr. Peterson said that a new Grade 8 program, providing a stiffer academic curriculum and a separate occupational training course will be started in B.C. schools next fall.

Pupils in Grade 7 will write final departmental examinations this June to help determine which are to continue in regular academic studies and which are to be channelled

Space Flight Off Again

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) —The flight of U.S. astronaut John Glenn, set for 4.30 a.m. PST today, was postponed again early this morning until Thursday by still boiling seas in the central Atlantic landing area.

This was the eighth postponement since the flight was orginally scheduled for Dec. 20.

Second Look Demanded For Columbia Treaty

OTTAWA (CP)—The Columbia River development treaty with the United States should be given another serious look to correct some omissions, Senator Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia) said Tuesday.

The treaty signed early last year overlooks the benefits that the U.S. will gain in water for irrigation, the senator said, and it leaves Canada saddled with $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 costs in relocating 6,000 persons who would be displaced by the High Arrow storage dam.

THREE DAMS

He said Canada would spend about $450,000,000 on three Columbia River storage dams plus transmission lines and the actual U.S. capital cost would be $150,000,000.

If the U.S. attempted to gain the same hydro and flood-control benefits on its side of the international river, it would cost the U.S. in interest alone close to $800,000,000."

ANY WONDER?

"Is it any wonder that we in B.C. who have looked into this matter believe that the treaty should be re-scanned again in the light of these facts that are coming out?"

Let Public Sue Crown—MLA

Oak Bay Liberal lawyer Alan Macfarlane introduced a private member's bill in the legislature yesterday that would give the public full rights to sue the crown.

The bill would give an individual rights to sue for damage or loss for which a government employee could be blamed.

AUTOMATIC RIGHT

It would also provide that in cases where the cabinet now has to issue a permit before the crown can be sued, there should be an automatic right to go to court.

Such an act would have allowed the B.C. Power Corporation to sue the government in connection with the B.C. Electric takeover.

Proposal Debated

Macmillan Pledges Compromise Effort

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Macmillan pledged yesterday to do his utmost to find a compromise with Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the proposal for a summit disarmament conference in Geneva.

'SPIRIT WELCOMED'

He told the Commons that governments of the Big Three Western powers were giving careful consideration to Khrushchev's bid and said the West welcomed the "broad spirit" of the proposal.

WAY NEEDED

He added, however, that a way must be found to reconcile Khrushchev's "general ideas" with the more specific Western call for attendance of the nuclear powers' foreign ministers at the conference.

Macmillan also assured the House there would be no U.S. nuclear tests on British-held Christmas Island in the Pacific before the Geneva conference opens on March 14. The United States has raised the possibility of using Christmas Island for new atmospheric tests following the collapse of the East-West nuclear test ban talks.

Young Boy Dies In Dentist Chair

VANCOUVER (CP)—A three-year-old boy died in a dentist's chair Tuesday during a prolonged session under anesthetic.

Christopher N. Tonner was coming out of the anesthetic when police said he apparently suffered a cardiac failure. He was taken to hospital but declared dead on arrival.

Police said the youngster was undergoing nine fillings and two extractions by Dr. W. L. Elliott. The lad was under anesthetic which was administered by Dr. J. A. McNab to permit the lengthy treatment.

The boy's father, William Tonner, returned to the dentist's office to pick up his son and found he was being given emergency treatment. He said young Christopher had undergone a complete medical examination recently and had been found in good health.

2,300 Saved From Flood

GREYBULL, Wyo. (UPI)—Dynamiters working from light planes and helicopters yesterday broke up two huge ice jams on the swollen Big Horn River and apparently spared this northwest Wyoming town from flooding.

L. C. Brinkerhoff, Big Horn county sheriff and civil defence director, ordered the town's 2,300 inhabitants evacuated when the ice first broke loose. One jam was about a mile upstream and the other approximately eight miles away.

'The Queen' Goes Unpaid

NANAIMO—Civic properties and recreation commission has rejected a claim for royalties on the anthems "God Save The Queen" and "O Canada," played at the opening and closing of sporting events in the civic arena.

The $18 bills have been sent to the commission on two occasions, a spokesman said Tuesday, from the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada Ltd., Toronto.

The commission argues the two anthems were written long ago and are old enough to be in the public domain—no longer subject to authors' royalties.

Port Alberni

Water Bill Going Up

PORT ALBERNI—A waterworks bylaw which will boost domestic rates 80 per cent to $3.60 a month has been unveiled by city council.

Ald. Bob Dalton said the increase from the present $2 still leaves Port Alberni with a rate comparing favorably with other B.C. cities and proposed new commercial and unmetered rates will rank with the lowest of any Vancouver Island city.

NEEDED TO PAY

Metered rates to industrial and commercial users also are to be raised about 80 per cent.

The new rate structure, said Ald. Dalton, is needed to pay for the present expansion project and for annual repayment of principal and interest.

The new commercial rate will overcome a large differential between existing metered premises and those on a flat rate.

The bylaw lays down as policy extension of water mains to new subdivisions and payment for installation of water service to one-owner blocks.

Council intends to pass similar legislation for sewers in new subdivisions and plans a policy of opening and gravelling roads under local improvement.

A request for water service in the "Sahara Heights" area was tabled.

In other business, council received a request from the Chamber of Commerce for a $2,000 grant for tourist and industrial promotion.

Duncan Joins Fall Fair Plan

DUNCAN—City council has decided to join forces with the Cowichan exhibition board for a special fall fair marking Duncan's 50th birthday.

Miss Mary Waldon, spokesman for the board, urged long-range planning for a fair Sept. 7 and 8. A parade and RCAF display already are planned.

FIREMEN HAILED

Ald. Hamish Mutter urged council praise for the local fire brigade's handling of the recent truck train accident on Allenby Road.

Through their quick action and "courageous efficiency," he said, "a major catastrophe was averted."

Traffic committee was asked to probe the complaint of sawrepair shop owner Alfred Newman that his premises are blocked during most business hours by cars "permanently parked" on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Council agreed to applications by the Order of the Royal Purple and the IODE for tag days in April and June.

Churchmen Hail Radiation Fight

NANAIMO—Comox-Nanaimo presbytery of the United Church has passed a resolution praising the anti-radiation efforts of the Canadian Peace Research Institute and committees on radiation hazards.

Resolution moved by Rev. Chris Jack of Nanaimo was passed unanimously. It read: "We realize the inability of east and west to resolve their differences but we also believe the issues are so important a continued effort must be made."

The research institute will begin its campaign for funds here March 5. Chairman Mrs. Corinne Taylor said there will be a door-to-door drive and a business canvass.

Sentence Suspended

Knifer Provoked, Court Rules

ALBERNI—Because circumstances leading to a knifing "could constitute provocation," Magistrate W. E. MacLeod yesterday gave James Anthony Bos, 22, a two-year suspended sentence.

Bos also must post a $500 behavior bond for assault causing bodily harm in the stabbing of Maurice Tremblay Dec. 16 on rural Broadway Street just west of city limits.

Four youths were involved and the magistrate said he could not condone their behavior.

"They had all had too much to drink and engaged in a childish argument," he said.

Tremblay testified he was stabbed while trying to persuade Bos not to use the knife against one of the others, Jay Robertson.

No Bill for Nanaimo Over 'The Queen' Music Man Insists

W. S. Low, general manager of the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada Ltd., said in Toronto Tuesday his association never billed the Nanaimo civic properties and recreation commission for royalties on the playing of "God Save the Queen" or "O Canada."

"We as an association," said Mr. Low, "have not billed, will not bill and will never bill anybody anywhere at any time for the performance in public of 'God Save the Queen.'"

"There is a version of 'O Canada' which is still in copyright but we don't deal with that either. We do not, have not or ever will attempt to require the payment of licence fees of national anthems or any country's national song. 'O Canada' is considered a national song."

FLAT FEE

Mr. Low said his association collects a flat government-approved quarter-annual fee for the right to perform copyrighted works in arenas, based on seating capacity.

He said it was possible the Nanaimo commission had received an inquiry from his field staff as to what music was played at sporting events.

MIGHT HAVE

If no answer was received, his field staff might have billed the commission anyway, based on what the association was informed was done.

That method was used at times to "flush out" information not otherwise forthcoming.

Two 12-year-old Victoria boys were safe at home last night after being missing for 36 hours.

Robert Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Matthews, 2644 Blanshard, a Grade 6 student at St. Louis College, and Wayne Coburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Coburn, 2640 Blanshard, in Grade 5 at North Ward School, left home for school Monday morning.

They never got there—and late in the day were reported missing.

Shortly after suppertime last night, they returned home. Why had they taken off?

They didn't know, they told their parents. They just went.

They spent Monday night "not far from home," and were found Tuesday morning by the truant officer—so spent Tuesday at school.

They were a bit reluctant to go home then, but made it.

Knickerbockers for Edgelow?

The controversy over bobby helmets for city policemen will come to a head soon as a centennial celebrations issue.

Over strenuous opposition from Ald. Michael Griffin and Ald. A. W. Toone, city parks committee has voted to find out if there isn't one city policeman who would be willing to wear a bobby helmet during the tourist season as a "centennial contribution" in the Causeway-legislative buildings area.

"I don't see why a policeman or anybody need feel embarrassed wearing a helmet," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said when he broached the subject.

"Can I ask if the chairman of the centennial committee will spend the summer wearing knickerbockers?" asked Ald. Griffin.

"I think it is a little different, asking me to wear knickerbockers," Ald. Edgelow shot back. "We are a tourist town. I don't think it is being unreasonable in asking them to wear helmets."

Ald. Griffin: "The police have said they don't want to wear them. It is not a matter of co-operation. I asked the policeman down in the area if he would like to wear one and he told me in no uncertain terms he didn't want to."

The motion was carried with Ald. Griffin and Ald. Toone voting against it. Ald. Edgelow, Mayor R. B. Wilson and Ald. Millard Mooney voted in favor.

Boy Cyclist City Traffic Victim

City police have asked for any eyewitnesses to a fatal accident on Pandora near Cook yesterday to get in touch with them.

Traffic officers are trying to establish what direction 13-year-old Gerald Griffin, 2221 Lydia, was riding his bicycle when he struck a car driven by Gordon Burleson, 1344 Thurlow Road.

GOING TO SCHOOL

The boy was dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital emergency ward.

He was on his way from his home near the hospital to South Park School on Douglas Street near Beacon Hill Park when the fatal accident occurred about 8.15 a.m.

Inquest will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at McCall's funeral home.

BOTH AT HOSPITAL

The death was the first traffic fatality of 1962 for the city of Victoria.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Marie Griffin, a nurse's aide, and his grandfather, William Rowlandson, an engineer in the Jubilee maintenance department, were both at work at the hospital when he was brought in on a police stretcher.

Police said it was not certain what course the boy took just before the accident.

Burleson's car was going east on Pandora and had just passed through the Cook Street intersection when Griffin apparently darted south across Pandora on his bicycle.

DISTANCE GIVEN

The boy and his bicycle were dragged in front of the car for about 50 to 60 feet, said police.

Free Parking Revival Cooled Off

The touchy issue of free parking permits came up yesterday at a meeting of city traffic committee but was quickly dropped again.

Ald. Michael Griffin suggested permits for school board members so they could work "without the one-armed bandits forever tagging them."

The subject was dropped when Mayor R. B. Wilson suggested that "until there is an official request, the committee do nothing."

Nothing daunted, Alec shovered the bird with pepper and salt and dug his fork into the carcass.

There was a dull thud.

"It's hollow," said an astounded Alec.

It was, too. In fact it was a plastic duck similar to the type used in stores to show how much food can be crammed in a refrigerator.

Seems the waitresses have been having a fine time with the gag.

Earlier in the day they tried it on Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz but he suspected something was wrong right from the start.

But not our Alec.

He obviously doesn't know a game bird from a bird game!

YOUNG AT HEART: On his way down to Victoria for the session Leo Nimsick, the NDP-CCFer from Cranbrook, called in to see Tom Uphill, the elderly firebrand independent who held the Fernie seat for 40 years before his retirement in 1960.

"Tom would have liked to attend the session this year, but he is not very well physically," Mr. Nimsick said yesterday. "But he still carries a sense of humor and is always ready to joke.

"I asked him when he got married, and he said he got married the same day his wife had."

Mr. Nimsick said some recognition should be made of Mr. Uphill's lengthy term of service and suggested a photograph be hung in the corridor and his name be given to some appropriate structure in Fernie.

EXOTIC DEPARTURE: Commercial for a "Gourmet Survival Kit" was broadcast over KABL, Oakland, about 3 a.m. Monday.

The column spy who heard it said it wasn't a gag.

It began with a brief reflection on the horrors of six weeks on bread and water, then went on . . .

"Imagine the thrill, sitting in your shelter, opening your wicker hamper and finding caviar, escargots, French-fried grasshoppers . . ."

SO WHO'S PERFECT, DEPT.: A letter from the Financial Post arrived at the desk of our Harry Young yesterday.

Self-Help 'Miracle Healer'

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Second of a Series

Doctors have re-discovered two old weapons for the battle against disease—self-help and neighborly kindness.

Sick and injured people are being brought from their beds much sooner than they were. Some who used to be regarded as chronic invalids and stored away like lumber in nursing-home beds, are now being induced to walk, or push themselves about in wheel chairs.

Among these people are half paralyzed victims of strokes—the clotting of blood vessels in the brain. Many stroke victims do not stand much chance of getting better: but doctors and physiotherapists, working together, have restored encouraging numbers of them to motion.

The doctors and physiotherapists follow a simple rule—persuade the patient to help himself. The patient is the only person who can build up his own muscles, and persuade nerve impulses to find new pathways.

Some of these patients, brought to their feet by the "miracle" of self-help, can go home. Others go to nursing or boarding homes.

Amateurs Assist

In either case, their improved condition saves money. A patient who can feed himself and move about is cheaper to look after than a patient who must be waited on.

Families and neighbors are pressed into service as the doctor's amateur helpers, when a rehabilitated patient goes home.

At this point neighborly kindness becomes an important healing device. By welcoming the patient, making a place for him—and yet giving him a chance to be as self-reliant as possible — family and friends can help his recovery.

Today's complex problems of medicine demand careful, scientific planning. Technical progress—the invention of new machines and laboratory methods—have made medicine more impersonal.

Balanced against this trend is an increasing need for the ordinary citizen to be an instrument of healing—to play a greater part in helping himself and his neighbor to get well.

The Royal Commission on Health Services, due to make a one-day stand at the Empress Hotel in Victoria, Feb. 19, is serving a number of useful purposes. One of its purposes is to catch the layman's attention and enrol him as the doctor's helper.

Can Save Fortune

The forces of neighborly kindness and medical planning, working together, can save millions of dollars in hospital and nursing home costs.

Winnipeg General Hospital saved $268,430 in two years by a home-care medical program, financed through federal-provincial health grants.

Visiting teams from the hospital attended patients at home—thereby saving the occupancy of 33 hospital beds and 27 nursing-home beds. Family help and psychological support helped in recovery.

Record-keepers of Britain's National Health Service discovered that single people were much more likely to go to hospital than married people.

In relation to their numbers, twice as many single, widowed or divorced people went to hospitals. The proportion rises with age. About two thirds of all the hospital beds in the country occupied by those aged over 65 are taken by the single, widowed or divorced.

Crowding Deplored

The loneliness of an impersonal, machine society is acknowledged by doctors to be one of the forces that drive people toward mental and physical breakdown.

The Tyhurst report on mental health services urges that mental patients be removed from prison-like segregated mental hospitals and treated in unlocked psychiatric wings of general hospitals, within easy reach of their home communities.

Dr. James S. Tyhurst professor and head of the department of psychiatry, UBC medical school, has long campaigned to bring the victims of emotional disorders back into the everyday world.

Manitoba Psychiatric Association, in its brief to the royal commission on health services, deplored the concentration of 4,000 patients in three large understaffed and overcrowded provincial government institutions.

Most British Columbia psychiatrists hold similar views of the institutions in this province.

Volunteers Needed

Dr. Tyhurst recently called mental illness "the largest special medical and hospital program in Canada." Half Canada's hospital beds are occupied by patients with psychiatric disorders. One Canadian in 12 will enter mental hospital.

New drugs and psychiatric methods have made it possible for people to be released more rapidly from mental hospitals than they once were.

Here again the neighbors can help the patient by treating him as a human being, not as an oddity; and by finding him a job if he can handle one.

Canadian Mental Health Association is recruiting a force of volunteers to help in rehabilitation. (Applicants must be screened to eliminate people who are themselves emotionally disturbed.)

These and other voluntary groups provide an example of the way that citizens can help the doctor.

All Paris Stops As 300,000 Join in Protest

PARIS (UPI)—The Communists yesterday tied up the country with a general strike that brought 300,000 Frenchmen into the streets of Paris—one of the greatest crowds since the 1944 liberation.

The show-of-strength operation defied a government ban. It was in protest against the Algerian policies of both President de Gaulle and right wing terrorists.

There was no violence.

MOST EFFECTIVE

The strike was called by the Communist - dominated General Confederation of Labor. Veteran observers said it was one of the most effective ever seen in this country where political walkouts are frequent.

POWER CUT

Railroads were at a virtual standstill. Flights in and out of the city's two big airports were cancelled for two hours. Electricity and gas were cut for varying lengths of time. There were no mail deliveries. Garbage remained uncollected. Subways and buses stopped for two hours. Schools and shops were closed. Many factories were idle for most of the day. No newspapers appeared.

STRIKE TIMED

The strike was timed to coincide with the funerals of eight persons killed in last Thursday's rioting over the Algerian situation. All but two of the victims were Communists.

No unusual police measures were taken. But the demonstration was controlled by Communist officials. It was completely orderly.

WALL-TO-WALL

The main throng of marchers stretched wall-to-wall across the broad Avenue de la Republique, filling its entire 1½-mile length from the square to the cemetery.

Parisian protesters, as far as the eye can see, jammed Avenue de la Republique yesterday as 300,000 people marched in silent protest against the secret French army organization and police repression of demonstrations against rightwing terrorists. The crowd was taking part in mass funeral for victims of last week's street fighting. No incidents occurred. — (AP Photofax)

Powers Given Drugs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television commentator David Brinkley of NBC said Tuesday night Francis Gary Powers has confirmed his U-2 spy plane had mechanical trouble before it was downed in Russia in May, 1960.

Brinkley also claimed that, "for more than three months before the Moscow trial, Powers was kept in total isolation, given what is called a psychological conditioning, including some drugs, before he was put on the stand to answer a series of questions."

There was no comment from official sources on Brinkley's statement.

Quake Hits Chile Area

WESTON, Mass. (UPI) — Weston observatory reported today it had recorded a "very strong" earthquake, 5,500 miles south of here, probably in Chile.

ALLIES PLAN SUMMIT 'BAIT'

Red Concessions Hoped

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday discussed with the British and French ambassadors Allied diplomatic strategy which some high officials believe will lead to a summit conference with Russia this summer or fall.

Administration sources said the strategy is to hold out the possibility of a top level meeting as "bait" to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in an effort to secure Russian concessions at the Geneva disarmament talks and to keep the Berlin crisis subdued.

The Russian reaction is expected to give some more specific idea of just how much political trouble Khrushchev has at home and how serious he considers the Soviet's widening ideological split with Red China.

'PEACE OFFENSIVE'

Officials acknowledged that Rusk's meeting with ambassadors Herve Alphand of France and Sir David Ormsby-Gore of Britain was concerned with how to handle Khrushchev's new "peace offensive."

THREE AGREE

The three Western powers have agreed to reject Khrushchev's proposal for a summit conference to open the disarmament talks on March 14. But Britain and the United States intend to tell the Russian leader a summit conference might be held later if there is progress at Geneva and no worsening of the cold war on other fronts.

SIDESTEP CHARGED

In Moscow yesterday, officials reaffirmed Russian opposition to disarmament controls and said the U.S. was trying to sidestep Premier Khrushchev's call for a summit meeting.

MAY SHOW UP

There was a widespread belief among Kremlin diplomats that Khrushchev will show up at Geneva on March 14 and thus bring heavy pressure on Kennedy and Macmillan to go there at the same time.

It was thought that the Soviet premier could score a big propaganda victory by attending the conference.

NOT CHANGED

Washington officials emphasized that Khrushchev's summit proposal and the tone of his approach had not altered Kennedy's intention to make a firm decision by the end of this month on whether to resume U.S. nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

High Schools Disappear This Year

By PETER BRUTON

The term "high school" is to be abolished in B.C. this year, Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the legislature yesterday.

Schools will be known as "elementary" and "secondary" schools — one of many new changes to be wrought in the B.C. education system as a result of the Chant royal commission report of a year ago.

NEW PROGRAM

Mr. Peterson said that a new Grade 8 program, providing a stiffer academic curriculum and a separate occupational training course will be started in B.C. schools next fall.

Pupils in Grade 7 will write final departmental examinations this June to help determine which are to continue in regular academic studies and which are to be channelled

Space Flight Off Again

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) —The flight of U.S. astronaut John Glenn, set for 4.30 a.m. PST today, was postponed again early this morning until Thursday by still boiling seas in the central Atlantic landing area.

This was the eighth postponement since the flight was originally scheduled for Dec. 20.

Second Look Demanded For Columbia Treaty

OTTAWA (CP)—The Columbia River development treaty with the United States should be given another serious look to correct some omissions, Senator Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia) said Tuesday.

The treaty signed early last year overlooks the benefits that the U.S. will gain in water for irrigation, the Senator said, and it leaves Canada saddled with $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 costs in relocating 6,000 persons who would be displaced by the High Arrow storage dam.

THREE DAMS

He said Canada would spend about $450,000,000 on three Columbia River storage dams plus transmission lines and the actual U.S. capital cost would be $150,000,000.

If the U.S. attempted to gain the same hydro and flood-control benefits on its side of the international river, it would cost the U.S. in interest alone close to $900,000,000.

ANY WONDER?

"Is it any wonder that we in B.C. who have looked into this matter believe that the treaty should be re-scanned again in the light of these facts that are coming out?"

Let Public Sue Crown—MLA

Oak Bay Liberal lawyer Alan Macfarlane introduced a private member's bill in the legislature yesterday that would give the public full rights to sue the Crown.

The bill would give an individual rights to sue for damage or loss for which a government employee could be blamed.

AUTOMATIC RIGHT

It would also provide that in cases where the cabinet now has to issue a permit before the Crown can be sued, there should be an automatic right to go to court.

Such an act would have allowed the B.C. Power Corporation to sue the government in connection with the B.C. Electric takeover.

Can't Wait Says U.S.

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States cannot wait indefinitely for Canada to ratify the Columbia River treaty, Charles Luce, administrator for Bonneville Power said Tuesday.

Proposal Debated

Macmillan Pledges Compromise Effort

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Macmillan pledged yesterday to do his utmost to find a compromise with Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the proposal for a summit disarmament conference in Geneva.

'SPIRIT' WELCOMED

He told the Commons that governments of the Big Three Western powers were giving careful consideration to Khrushchev's bid and said the West welcomed the "broad spirit" of the proposal.

WAY NEEDED

He added, however, that a way must be found to reconcile Khrushchev's "general ideas" with the more specific Western call for attendance of the nuclear powers' foreign ministers at the conference.

Macmillan also assured the House there would be no U.S. nuclear tests on British-held Christmas Island in the Pacific before the Geneva conference opens on March 14. The United States has raised the possibility of using Christmas Island for new atmospheric tests following the collapse of the East-West nuclear test ban talks.

Young Boy Dies In Dentist Chair

VANCOUVER (CP)—A three-year-old boy died in a dentist's chair Tuesday during a prolonged session under anesthetic.

Christopher N. Tonner was coming out of the anesthetic when police said he apparently suffered a cardiac failure. He was taken to hospital but declared dead on arrival.

Police said the youngster was undergoing nine fillings and two extractions by Dr. W. L. Elliott. The lad was under anesthetic which was administered by Dr. J. A. McNab to permit the lengthy treatment.

The boy's father, William Tonner, returned to the dentist's office to pick up his son and found he was being given emergency treatment. He said young Christopher had undergone a complete medical examination recently and had been found in good health.

2,300 Saved From Flood

GREYBULL, Wyo. (UPI)—Dynamiters working from light planes and helicopters yesterday broke up two huge ice jams on the swollen Big Horn River and apparently spared this northwest Wyoming town from flooding.

L. C. Brinkerhoff, Big Horn county sheriff and civil defence director, ordered the town's 2,300 inhabitants evacuated when the ice first broke loose. One jam was about a mile upstream and the other approximately eight miles away.
